Could This Be Victoria's Heliport Site?

Attention to this section of Victoria's waterfront as a possible site for a heliport has been focused by an extensive Capital Region planning report prepared by engineer James W. Wilson. Report holds great future for helicopter here and without pin-pointing any particular area, Mr. Wilson said a site at least five acres in area would be needed. "A location in an industrial district on the edge of the downtown area might be best, and the harbor area, which offers approaches over water, should be given special scrutiny." Area above shows vacant area on west side of Inner Harbor, beyond Johnson Street Bridge. Area is zoned for industry; is away from residences, and little more than half a mile from City Hall.

VANCOUVER (BUP)—Pilot George Kent and passenger Bert Toll, both of Powell River, who disappeared aboard a small civilian plane have been found unhurt, Royal Canadian Air Force headquarters here reported today.

An RCAF search plane located the missing craft on Texada Island this morning.

Searchers reported the men were with the plane and would be contacted to find out what aid they need.

CANADA PAYS TRIBUTE

Malik Nominated Vishinsky Successor

NEW YORK (AP)—The body of the old Communist Andrei Vishinsky, encased in a coffin fit for a millionaire, goes back to Moscow tonight. Meantime Jacob Malik will be crossing the Atlantic in the opposite direction to take up temporarily the duties of representing the Soviet Union at the United Nations.

After Vishinsky died Monday a Russian delegation spokesman announced that the body would lie in state today so the public could view it at the delegation's Park Avenue headquarters. But today police announced the public had been barred, and only members of other United Nations delegations, government officials and such would be permitted to enter the building.

The Soviet embassy in London announced that Jacob Malik, Russian ambassador to Britain, will take over temporarily as head of the UN delegation. Malik, who has previously served at the international organization headquarters, leaves London by plane tonight.

Speculation as to Vishinsky's permanent successor centered on Gromyko, Malik, Georgi Zarubin, ambassador to the United States, and Arkady Sobolev, No. 2 man in the Russian delegation.

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (BUP)—Canadian delegate David M. Johnson paid tribute to the late Andrei V. Vishinsky as one of "the best known and ablest representatives" in the United Nations.

Johnson told the General Assembly Monday:

"The Canadian delegation joins with other delegations in extending to the Soviet delegation, to Madame Vishinsky and their daughter, our sincere sympathy on the passing of Andrei Vishinsky."

"Mr. Vishinsky's sudden death came as a shock to us all."

"During the last two weeks, members of the Canadian delegation had occasion to see him, not only in public meetings but in private. Mr. Vishinsky had appeared to be in the best of health and good spirits."

"I regret that the chief of our delegation, Mr. Paul Martin, is not here to speak on behalf of the Canadian delegation."

"In the death of Mr. Vishinsky, the Soviet Union lost a devoted public servant who, with his great gift of oratory, was able most effectively to place before the U.N. and the world the views of his country."

"The UN has lost one of its best known and ablest representatives."

implemented without amalgamation.

The fact that Mr. Wilson could discuss so many matters that concern all of us is ample proof that amalgamation is needed," Mr. Kent argued.

Donald Smith, former alderman and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs group, said the need for amalgamation "was more obvious now, after reading the planner's report."

Mr. Wilson's report, a 60-page document titled "The Capital Region Takes Stock," was made public Monday.

Stuart Keate, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said Mr. Wilson's findings "show clearly that within 25 years the population of the area can be expected to double. The need for amalgamation will become increasingly evident."

RAISE SIGHTS

"We must raise our sights," Mr. Keate said. "We must decide whether we want to be one big city or a congeries of local governments."

Three prominent members of the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs group gave a decided "no" to the question: "Is it possible that the area as a whole can be adequately and properly planned, and the plans put into effect, without amalgamation?"

"It is impossible," declared Forrest L. Shaw, chief advocate of amalgamation and a long-time student of the complex matters involved.

"Creation of the Capital Region Planning Board does not take away the autonomy of the municipalities," Mr. Shaw said. "It can merely give advice."

M. Aubrey Kent, former city alderman, said he, too, doubted that any over-all plan could be implemented without amalgamation.

Mr. Wilson, in his report, touched upon the administrative aspect of the capital region but did not raise the question of amalgamation. Some Chamber of Commerce men felt he skirted this deliberately, realizing the issue was a controversial one, and not wishing to antagonize anyone.

Mr. Wilson gave this comment: "It is not apparent that there are any inter-municipal problems — with the exception of the development of metropolitan parks — which are not being adequately dealt with now by some inter-municipal body or agreement. In fact, the number of such arrangements which appear to be working satisfactorily is quite remarkable."

"However, such problems are likely to increase in number and complexity as the urban area grows."

When a third fireman cut the halyard holding Jekubs, the steeplejack started to fall. His body twisted as it reached the end of the slack on the safety rope.

The combination of his weight and the twist pulled the belt hook out and Jekubs kept on falling, plunging down to the ground.

Peter Jekubs, 50, hung head downward and helpless for more than an hour after he had slipped from the tower and a rope snarled around one leg, held him fast.

The crowd which gathered to watch the attempts of firemen to rescue him moaned and screamed when the steeplejack fell to earth. One woman fainted.

Jekubs died of injuries that included a fractured skull, breaks of both arms, several ribs, bones in the lower body and a deep gash in his head.

A safety belt was buckled around Jekubs' waist by two firemen and a rope fastened from a block-and-tackle to a hook on the belt.

'NO HANKY-PANK, MEN' WOMEN OF MARS WARN

PARIS (Reuters)—A current flying saucer craze has reached a new peak today with publication of a new monthly magazine called "The Voice of the Martians."

The review, which costs "on earth 30 francs, on Mars 0.319 bos," writes of the earth as "martians" see it from their "flying saucers" which are swarming over France these days.

It published a resolution by a Martian women's league calling on the government of Mars to forbid earth expeditions to bring back alive to Mars "any female creature." The league said it did not want Martians frequenting the earth "for low debauchery under pretext of scientific investigations."

Forest License 'Rat Race' Scored

American Application for Rights Brings Blast From Gordon Gibson

B.C.'s forest management policies came under increased opposition today with the announcement an Oregon logging firm has applied for a management license in the Anderson River area, near Boston Bar.

Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson, long-time B.C. logger, and a prominent opponent of the management system, said the government could soon "expect applications from Florida."

"They will come from all over as soon as word gets around we give away our natural resources," said Gibson. He said the Social Credit forest management policies have become "a rat race."

The Oregon firm has been identified as the Hampton interests. The firm plans construction of a $500,000 sawmill and planer mill near Boston Bar.

Pacific Pine of New Westminster also is reported to have applied for a management license in the same area, and also plans construction of a mill.

Officials of the forestry department are withholding all information from reporters. No information is available on the acreage involved, whether the license applications conflict, or the amount of timber involved.

Deputy Forests Minister C. D. Orchard said he had "no information to give you."

Mr. Sommers would not see reporters.

Mr. Gibson said smaller B.C. logging companies would "revolt if the government keeps giving licenses to U.S. firms."

"Under the present policy it is handing out favors to the few, while depriving the many of the means of making a living," he said.

Meanwhile, the B.C. Truck Loggers Association has stepped up demands for an investigation into issuing of forest management licenses.

"There has been far too much backroom discussion with the public left wondering just what is happening to the rightful heritage of the people," the association said.

PREMIER SPEAKS

GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)—Loopholes in the forest management license plan which allow large operators to bid up timber sales too high for small operators to compete will be reviewed at the next session of the legislature, Premier Bennett said here Monday night.

The premier made the statement in an interview before making a public address before 500 persons here.

Swan Killer May Face Charge

Action will be considered against a hunter who shot a trumpeter swan in the Courtenay-Campbell River district following receipt of a report on the shooting, Inspector G. C. Stevenson of the B.C. game department said here today.

Word of the shooting was received here Monday, but to date no official report of the incident has reached the inspector.

Jackie Wright said she knows the sheik wants to marry a blonde but she is willing to bleach her hair if he insists.

"I'll even ride a three-humped camel if that's what he wants," she said.

Sheik Gaafar told Cairo reporters last week he is lonely and wants to marry a girl who will wear a veil and live with him in his air-conditioned villa in Kuwait on the Persian Gulf.

Jackie's mother, who says she wouldn't mind being mother-in-law to a sheik, saw the story in the paper.

"I've never seen him but anyone who advertises for someone to go off into the desert with him sounds like the type of man for me," said Jackie.

Jackie, who is proud of her 36-24-36 measurements, said she does not know if Sheik Gaafar will accept her but she is hoping. She is a telephone operator.

She says age does not matter since the sheik, twice her age, feels only 23.

"I like boys but I've never got serious about one," she said.

Russ Amendments Lost, Vote Made Unanimous

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The UN political committee today unanimously approved President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

This was the second unanimous decision by the UN during the current session of the 60-nation General Assembly.

The UN previously had agreed without a dissenting voice on a plan of work for the disarmament commission.

The vote came after Russia tried unsuccessfully to write into the plan a provision making the proposed international atomic agency subject to the Big Power veto.

Only the five Soviet bloc nations supported the Russian move and 12 countries, mostly Asian and Arab, abstained. All delegations, however, supported the plan in its entirety after the amendments were defeated.

TO SET UP AGENCY

Main points of the plan as approved:

1. Gives UN approval to the establishment of an international agency to further the peaceful uses of atomic energy. This was first proposed by President Eisenhower last Dec. 8.

2. Calls upon the secretary-general to arrange for an international scientific conference on the peaceful uses of atomic energy before next August.

3. Leaves for further negotiation the relationship between the proposed agency and the UN.

Eisenhower Places Damper On Big 4 Talks at Present

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that the United States will not agree to hold four power talks with the Soviet Union until the West German freedom and rearmament agreements have been put into effect.

The president, in response to a question, said he could not look into the future and foresee when conditions would make such talks possible.

He said he could not conceive that a meeting of heads of state would be worthwhile to begin with. He said it would be necessary to have talks on the diplomatic level first, and that he did not know what might follow.

The president announced that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will make an important foreign policy address Monday night in Chicago. He said Dulles would give quite an explanation of where this government stands on four-power talks and over-all foreign policy.

Eden to Sub For Winnie In Commons

LONDON (UP)—Foreign Secretary Anthony Eden will substitute for Winston Churchill and deliver the traditional address at the opening of parliament next Tuesday, an authoritative source said today.

The source said the precedent-breaking switch is being made because of "the large number of engagements" that will occupy Churchill on the day, his 80th birthday.

Substitution of Eden for his chief in such a traditionally important capacity put new emphasis on the reliance Churchill has come to place on his undoubted successor as prime minister.

JUST for the RECORD

CURFEW: In Pictou, N.S., Town council tried for months to find someone to turn on the curfew whistle every night at 9 o'clock.

Now they're trying to find someone to turn it off.

The second search is under way because a newly-installed automatic curfew-blower won't quit once the time clock sets it off.

$200 a Month Paid For Water in Milk

VANCOUVER (CP)—Basil Gardom, president of the Independent Milk Producers' Cooperative Association, said here Monday that farmers have been paid as much as $200 a month for water they added to milk.

Mr. Gardom was testifying before a Royal Commission inquiry into the milk industry.

Milk caps labeled "Jersey milk, 4.4 per cent," deceive the consumer, Mr. Gardom said.

"In approximately two years," Mr. Gardom said, "a family of large dairy farmers, without complaint from their dairy, each added a large quantity of water for which they received separately as high as $200 a month for the water."

In the land where dreams come true

As General Motors celebrates the occasion of the building of the 50 Millionth Car in the United States, General Motors of Canada, at its plant in Oshawa, looks with pride on its own record of 2,762,447 cars produced as of November 22nd this year. What makes these figures even more symbolical of the growing strength of the Canadian economy is the fact that more than half this number of cars has been produced during the last ten years of car building at Oshawa.

Today's a big day at General Motors. For, off assembly lines, at Flint, Michigan, rolls the Fifty Millionth Car built by General Motors in the United States.

This is an achievement without parallel in history.

This is something that calls for a celebration in Oshawa — because Oshawa builds more cars than any other Canadian city, but most of all because Oshawa represents an important part of the vast General Motors family. And there are four other GM plant cities in Canada which share Oshawa's pride.

But the occasion also calls for a celebration in all manner of towns and cities spread across the landscape from coast to coast.

For the fact sometimes overlooked, is that a modern automobile is made up of more than 17,000 separate pieces and parts, and the making of one obscure little part, such as a bushing or gasket or fastener, can become the basis for a thriving business.

And in many communities across the country there are businesses which grew and prospered in the process of building something for General Motors.

And this is how many a dream came true.

Fact is, the roll call includes hundreds of businesses engaged in shipping parts to General Motors plants in Canada, and behind these are hundreds of other businesses which are in turn suppliers to them.

But we still haven't taken account of the raw materials that flow from every Province.

Nor have we mentioned the 1200 local business men — General Motors car and truck dealers and their 29,000 employees who sell and service the vehicles General Motors factories have produced.

So, it's a big day at General Motors — and a big day in every town where men with practical dreams and the courage it takes to make dreams come true — continue to make this a better land to live in.

Our thanks go out to them, and to the spirit they represent, for making this day possible.

New Year's Eve Deadline for Vets To Buy Insurance
OTTAWA (BUP) — New Year's Eve is the deadline for veterans who were discharged before December 31, 1944, and their widows, to buy veterans' insurance. Veterans Affairs Minister Hughes Lapointe said Monday.

About one-third of Canada's ex-servicemen were discharged before the end of 1944. The rest have ten years from their date of discharge to buy the insurance.

Langford Man Champion B.C. Potato Grower
Yield Per Acre Over 28 Tons.

Victoria's for the first time has achieved fame among growers in all parts of the province as the home of the "champion spuds" of British Columbia.

The city owes its newly acquired publicity to Aubrey Hull of Langford, a hard working grower who won the Grand Championship Potato Award for B.C. at the 14th annual Potato and Vegetable Show held at the New Westminster City Market Monday.

Mr. Hull was presented with the Green Valley Fertilizer and Chemical Co. Ltd. Challenge Trophy, together with a cash prize of $100. Second place was won by Lloyd Smith of Courtenay, who received $75.

The "Green Valley" Grand Championship Potato Award is an annual competition open to all potato growers in B.C., growing five acres or more on one block, of one variety of certified seed or commercial table stock of potatoes.

Mr. Hull was determined this year to prove that South Vancouver Island could be equally famous for its "spuds" as its daffodils and berries. He proved it beyond doubt by producing a record crop—a yield exceeding 28 tons per acre with his White Rose variety.

There was no other grower in B.C. which had produced such a large crop and the potatoes were judged the finest grown in the province.

HENDERSON WROTE MOTHER 'If I Killed Her I Was Sick'

CALGARY (CP)—A diary kept by Donald Winslow Henderson and letters he wrote to his family after the death of Yvonne Levesque were introduced by the Crown Monday at Henderson's trial.

Henderson, 37-year-old native of Moose Jaw, is charged with the 1949 murder of Miss Levesque, the girl whose last four years of life he chronicled in detail in his diary.

His three letters, written from Winnipeg and Toronto after the beaten body of the former Edmonton waitress was found in a Calgary auto court, told of "weird faces and weird figures" that haunted him; praised the high moral character of the girl; and said if he killed her, it was the result of a sickness, "a violent delirium."

One letter said: "As near as I can tell I must have gone into a violent delirium temporarily. I now find myself recovered from this awful nightmare of finding the one who helped me the most is gone."

The diary traced part of Miss Levesque's background and detailed her movements—the weather on the evening some dates were to take place and the plot of shows she had seen with other men. Later, Henderson wrote reminders to himself to check the weather with the meteorological office and the movie with the theatre manager.

His mother, Mrs. Jane Henderson, 73, of Moose Jaw, identified the three letters. She said her son was "the very best boy in the world."

Oscar Primeau, the dead girl's uncle, said he understood Miss Levesque and Henderson were planning to be married about the time she died.

Beevor-Potts Hands Youths Stiff Lesson

NANAIMO (CP)—Judge Lionel Beevor-Potts set stiff probation terms in Nanaimo Monday as a warning aimed at drinking and misbehaving high school students.

He suspended the driving licence of a 17-year-old boy for the full 18 months of his probation term given for impaired driving.

The youth was also told to observe an 11:30 p.m. curfew unless he is with his parents or an approved person and to abstain from liquor even at home.

On another count of possessing liquor, the boy was fined $25. His father was ordered to pay court costs of $6 on the impaired driving charge.

Another 17-year-old youth was fined $15 and costs for being drunk Saturday.

Dr. Sam's Murder Trial Continues

CLEVELAND (AP)—Osteopath Sam Sheppard and his wife, Marilyn, shifted from a double bed to twin beds two weeks after they returned from California last spring, their maid testified today.

Mrs. Elmore Helms also told the jury trying the osteopath for his wife's murder July 4 that Mrs. Sheppard once had explained this to her by saying that "Dr. Sam had an awful bad cold."

The state claims that during that trip to California, Sheppard lived with a pretty-hospital technician named Susan Hayes while his wife was visiting friends several hundred miles away.

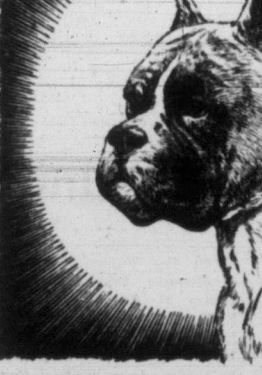

Another witness, Cyril Lipaj, a part-time policeman, testified that the professional football Cleveland Browns visited Sheppard in hospital just three days after the murder.

He said Sheppard also had a record player brought into the room and was listening to classical records from then on.

All-Canadian Design Drawn For New Flag

Newest design for an all-Canadian flag should have enough symbolism to keep everybody happy.

Simple, yet meaningful, is the suggested flag of F. Legace, Grenville, Que., who is presently campaigning for the new emblem as a distinctly Canadian flag.

The design would stick to tradition in that it is built along orthodox horizontal and vertical lines, the greatest departure being a large green maple leaf in the centre, surmounted by a crown.

Traditional colors, red, white and blue, are also retained, but their arrangement in alternate blocks is mildly suggestive of the diagonals in the Union Jack, thinks Mr. Legace.

BOLD CROSS

The bold white cross would represent many distinctly Canadian features and characteristics, among them: the Christian faith; long winter months; remnant of the Union Jack; coast-to-coast and north-to-south Canadian geography; national unity; political parties apart from Conservatives and Liberals; Canadians apart from English and French-speaking citizens and the Royal Canadian Navy.

The red patch in the upper left corner would indicate English-speaking Canadians and the red portions of the Union Jack, while the red lower right block would stand for the Liberal party and the army.

Blue in the lower left block would represent the air force and also the blue found in the Union Jack, and the matching patch in the upper right corner would be representative of French-speaking Canadians and the Conservative party.

The middle third of the flag, which would be of approximately standard dimensions, would be taken up by the maple leaf, symbolizing Canada's evergreen forests, the national emblem and summer months.

Canada's affection for royalty would be made clear by the crown just above the leaf on the white cross.

The suggested design's similarity to other recent nominations for a national flag may indicate the basis for agreement among Canadians.

Monday, the Times carried a picture of a flag design accepted by the executive council of Church of England in Canada.

These three, she said, were among the best Canada has as fiction writers.

He deplored the large number of foreign and the small amount of Canadian books being sold on the bookstands today.

"Canadians," he said, "buy two American magazines to every single Canadian publication and purchase 80 to 100 foreign books to every Canadian book."

Ex-Juvenile Officer Fined on Theft Charge

Pleads Guilty on Seven Counts; Witnesses Attest to Good Character of Accused

Former city juvenile officer, Arthur Rudge, was fined a total of $175 or 105 days in jail in city police court Monday.

He pleaded guilty to seven charges of theft of fines paid into juvenile court over the last two years. The money, taken $5 or $10 at a time, totaled $60.

Sentence was imposed by Ladysmith magistrate W. H. Bryant who said that in deciding on penalty by fines he was taking into consideration character evidence submitted.

Defense counsel Lloyd McKenzie, assisted by T. P. O'Grady, presented 10 character witnesses, including government officials, school principals, city businessmen, a physician and a police sergeant.

Percy E. George, chairman of the B.C. Public Utilities Commission and ex-mayor, said he knew Rudge about 19 years, called his character "first class," his reputation "possibly outstanding."

Principal of Victoria High School, H. L. Smith, said Rudge was "most co-operative and helpful."

Col. Donald McGugan, chairman of the B.C. Liquor Control Board; Frank Hunter, city clerk; businessman Aubrey Kent, each testified that Rudge's character and reputation were "excellent."

James W. Dalziel, manager of a city box factory, said Rudge was an employee of his when he was 16. "He was an excellent employee. I have a great deal of respect for him. He is well thought of."

Bernard C. Gillie, principal of S. J. Willis Junior High School; physician Dr. E. L. McNiven, assistant provincial probation officer, A. E. Jones and police court sergeant, Bob Davidson, each took the stand with similar words of praise.

Defense counsel McKenzie addressed the court.

"This man has enjoyed a particularly high place in this community, 21 years on the force, seven as juvenile officer. "Juvenile work is extremely demanding... it takes strength of character to successfully do

Lack of National Fiction Style Decried by Speaker

Few Canadian writers have successfully portrayed the complexity of the Canadian character, according to Professor R. E. Watters of the University of British Columbia.

Speaking to a meeting of the University Extension Association at Victoria College, Monday night, in connection with book week, Prof. Watters, discussing "Canadian Literature," outlined the necessity for a stronger, more clearly defined form of fictional literature in Canada.

"The cults and ideals of many lands have been woven into Canadian culture," he said, "and few, if any, Canadian writers have yet found the proper expression of our complicated way of life."

Prof. Watters illustrated examples of what he considered top-rate Canadian literature, discussing the works of McLennan, De la Roche and Ernest Buckler.

Apples have been eaten, and enjoyed, things you need every day — in the form you like best!

For many centuries — because people liked them and felt that apples were good for them. Sound reasoning, too — because today we know just how important a place the apple can fill in our everyday diets.

The apple is one of Nature's most perfect "food packages". Inside its crisp, glossy skin... locked in its tangy, taste-tempting flesh, are many of those

B.C. Apples are as wholesome and nourishing as they are appetite-appealing. Are Our Schools Extravagant?

WHEN PROPERTY-OWNERS of Greater Victoria vote on the school board's $3,129,000 new building referendum, costs will be on their minds.

It is agreed that more schools are needed. They must be built to house the greatly increased number of students in this region. Accepting that fact, the voter wants to know if he is getting value for his money. Through municipal taxes he will pay half the $3,129,000 total plus carrying charges on the debt. It is important to him that none of his money be wasted on non-essentials.

The school board presents a reassuring picture in a comparison of construction costs here and elsewhere. Heading the table below are three of Victoria's newest schools. Their costs are shown on two bases—per cubic foot and per square foot. These units are used in order to relate the different projects in different parts of the continent, some of which are set out in one measure, some in another.

The figures for Nelson and Burnaby schools and the generalized B.C. Department of Education range show Victoria to be in line with other parts of the province.

How close a comparison can be drawn between Victoria and Ontario centres in a matter of some doubt. The figures for that part of Canada do, nevertheless, show this community in a highly preferred position in respect to inexpensive construction.

Use is made of two United States examples because they are cited by U.S. architectural interests to prove how economically the modern school can be built. In each case the unit cost is far above that for Victoria and B.C. generally.

School and Type of Building	Costs Per cu. ft. Per sq. ft.
Central Junior High—Concrete	58.3c $11.62
Lansdowne Junior High—Frame	47.5c $ 8.68
James Bay Elementary—Frame	39.9c $ 6.77
Nelson Sr. High—Concrete and frame	$11.00
Burnaby Elementary—Frame	$ 7.00
B.C. Dept. of Ed. Elementary—Frame	$7 to $8
B.C. Dept. of Ed. Secondary—Frame	$8.50 to $9
B.C. Dept. of Ed.—Concrete	$12.00
Ontario Concrete and brick	89c to $1
U.S. Eastern States—1954	$18.95
California—Low cost	$15.36

It will be understood, of course, that climatic conditions, varying building codes and the spread in labor and material charges prevent direct comparison between different zones in Canada and on this continent from giving a perfectly true picture. It appears, though, that the Greater Victoria School Board stands in a favorable position.

The trustees invite study of these figures during the days remaining before the property owners mark their ballots early in December.

The Bear Who Sometimes Smiled

THE LATE ANDREI VISHINSKY was a unique figure in the Russian hierarchy. In contrast to such top men as Stalin and Molotov, he had not been one of the old Bolsheviks of the early days. Nor, like Malenkov, had he worked his way up through the Party ranks.

Vishinsky in his youth was a Menshevik, the moderate branch of the revolution later liquidated by the Bolsheviks. It speaks volumes for his ability, that despite this handicap and the further disadvantage of a bourgeois birth, he was able to rise to the ministerial level.

But Vishinsky was always suspect because of his origin. And although his secret thoughts no doubt will never be known, it may well be that the vehemence of his denunciations of western capitalism was spurred by his need to outdo even his superiors in his zeal for the Communist cause.

He devoted his political life—and he appeared to have no other—to interpretation of the Party line and a continual demonstration of his Party loyalty. But his role was that of technician rather than policy-maker; he was a spokesman, not a director. As such, this man who knew the western world at first hand, faithfully mouthed the Party propaganda written by those who had little direct knowledge of their democratic adversaries.

But there were two sides to this fiery and ruthless debater. He had on occasion a genial, even friendly, nature, and despite his vituperative onsets was liked by other diplomats.

Unlike many of the Russian representatives, such as Malik, Gromyko, and Molotov himself, Vishinsky did not have the granite look. In debate he had the appearance of an angry Russian bear. He spoke in a roar, and at wearing length; his arguments took the form of intricate chess-parings; he delighted in the technical wrangling of a born lawyer.

Vishinsky was particularly useful to Moscow during periods, such as today, when the Party line calls for a relaxation of tensions and a stressing of co-existence. At such times he could be the instrument for turning on the charm, abandoning his usual ferocious and intractable approach. The Kremlin may well find it difficult to replace this strange old man, who, although of bourgeois birth and education, became one of the foremost spokesmen for the proletarian revolution.

Clear Sailing Ahead?

THE WEST HAS BEEN HAPPY to note Premier Mendes-France's assurances that France will ratify the Western European Union pact. The obstruction raised by an eleven-hour West German objection to settlement of the Saarland question appears to have been surmounted. Chancellor Adenauer sees fair sailing ahead and at long last, chances for implementation of the agreements on West German sovereignty and rearmament appear good.

This is particularly welcome in view of Mr. Molotov's recent rather desperate proposals for a general international gathering to discuss a European settlement. For Mr. Mendes-France has taken the timely step of assuring the West that he agrees with Sir Winston Churchill and President Eisenhower on how to handle the Soviet suggestion. The allies will make the WEU defensive arrangement an accomplished fact before sitting down with the Russians to talk over a wider settlement. The latest Moscow approach appears to have propaganda value only. No conference of the magnitude suggested could be arranged within the time limit the Russians specify. Obviously there was no belief that the offer would be accepted.

There is every indication that the Soviet Foreign Minister was caught badly off base by the success of the London conference, which opened the way for the western agreement. Clearly, the Russians fear West Germany's rearmament and acceptance into the western orbit with an ally's full stature.

But Mr. Molotov's retaliatory threats of an east European defense ring lack steam. There is little in the way of arming the satellites that has not already been done, while rearmament of East Germany, in view of last year's civilian riots, would appear to be a hazardous venture for Russia.

Constructive Move on Narcotics

ATTORNEY-GENERAL ROBERT Bonner has brought a constructive approach to the narcotics problem with his suggestion of a joint meeting of federal authorities and representatives of three provinces.

He proposes that the health and justice departments discuss the question with the attorneys-general of Quebec, Ontario and British Columbia. These are the provinces in which drug addiction is greatest.

It is apparent from Mr. Bonner's statement that he realizes mere suppression is not enough to curb the narcotics traffic. Law enforcement, he says, has been successful as such, "but the fact is the addict population of British Columbia is not declining."

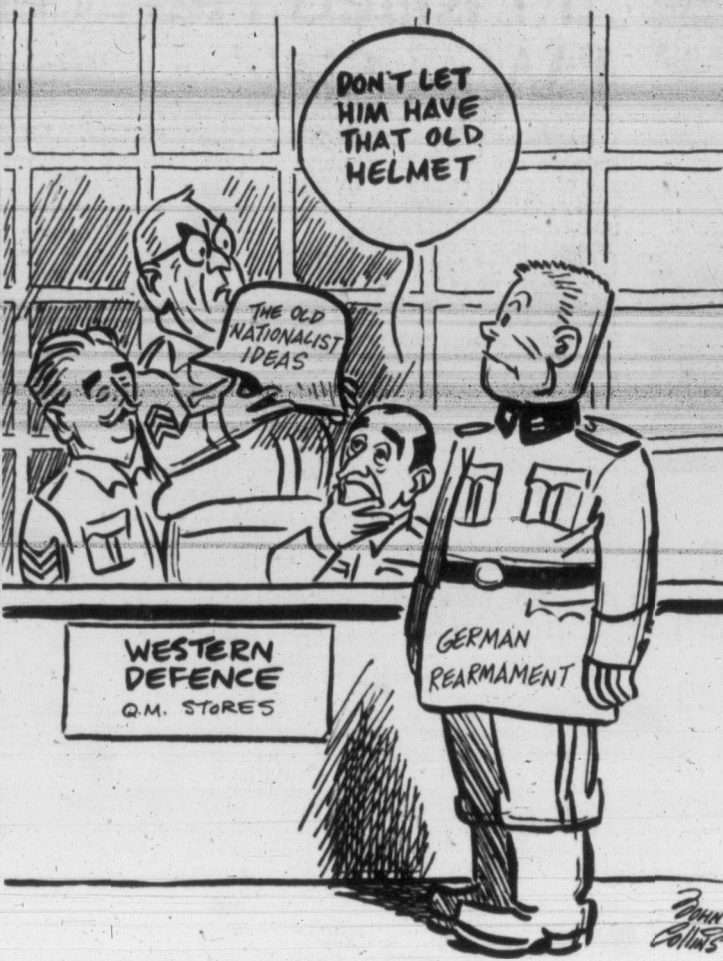

Mr. Bonner is impressed by the apparent success of the English system and believes this country might benefit by studying it. Any such study would presumably involve the consideration of treatment centres—possibly existing hospitals—and the advisability of distributing drugs by prescription. Beyond that are important questions in federal amendments to the Criminal Code and the Opium and Narcotics Drug Act. Changes would be required in both to permit a new approach to the issue.

Any effective system must depend to a substantial degree on co-operation from the addicts themselves. Obviously those interests which are reaping huge profits from the illegal sale of drugs will fight an experiment which threatens their profits. They will seek, too, to encourage users to boycott the plan.

That does not, however, doom any scheme to failure. Mr. Bonner has moved constructively in an attempt to remedy a grave situation in British Columbia. It is to be hoped he will be given support by other provinces and Ottawa in this effort.

CHURCHILL AND SHAWNIGAN

Sir Winston should be warned against visiting Shawnigan Lake School, as he is alleged to be of "mixed blood." Of course such aristocratic places as Harrow and Sandhurst where he was educated must have been less "exclusive." What of Buckingham Palace, where he is frequently a guest?

CHURCHILL, THE IROQUOIS

Someone has brought out a statement that is supposed to make news—that Sir Winston Churchill has some Iroquois blood in his veins.

Does that make him any better or worse than anyone else? None of us has any control over our ancestry. But we do have control over our actions and also to a large extent over our thoughts. Sir Winston Churchill has surely acquitted himself very admirably, and all of us in the free world have much to be thankful for that Britain had such a worthy leader in the time of her greatest test. We should all thank God for raising up such a man for such a time.

STAY UNMIXED

The separate school question should be settled by the Supreme Court of Canada. It is a matter of law, and affects the whole of Canada.

Our Canadian schools stand for education in the scientific subjects; arithmetic, grammar, history and geography, etc.; inculcating moral deportment and discipline.

All this can be proved by law, and makes for unity. Children do not attend Canadian schools as Catholics, Protestants, etc.; but as citizens or future citizens, who expect to reap the benefits of citizenship as well as the responsibilities.

Religion is controversial and very interesting to the various organizations, sects (sections), groups and societies which cater to nationalistic developments of adults.

Let us not get our departments mixed. Confusion and strife will be the result.

CANADIAN CITIZEN.

SLAUGHTERING DEER

A photograph appeared recently in the daily press portraying two men and two gun-slaughtered deer strung across the hood of the car—one animal displaying a jagged hole in the throat—the wound which terminated life for the "lower" animal and a condition of exultant ego in the product of civilization—the joyous killer.

Still more recently we learned of the predicament of a robust young man who suffered a broken leg during the ascent of Mt. Arrowsmith, and had perforce to remain helpless and dangerously roped to a rock on the edge of a precipice throughout many hours of darkness, blizzard and agony—until help came.

Other men of nerve went to the climber's assistance, facing mountain hazards—even death—in the ultimately successful attempt to save a life, and to all of these men of noble character, we offer congratulations and appreciation of the sacrifices they made to succor another in distress. And to the tiny bird which nestled closely to the victim's body throughout the dark hours of blizzard, extreme cold and frightful loneliness offering companionship and the deepest understanding we wish at all times doing distance from the gun-toting killer with a government license to kill on sight.

Loss of human life during this "shoot to kill" season is serious enough to require legislation which will provide for adequate knowledge of firearms, hunting procedures, and financial responsibility in the event of misfortune in the untimely and sometimes fatal injuries to the hunter, before licenses are issued.

WEST COAST ROADS, ETC.

I was very glad indeed to see a letter in your paper of November 17 by H. Cuthbert Holmes, and in which he mentioned Major George Nicholson, and our old-timer Mr. Frank Kelly and others, as old-time fighters for something to be done for "the vast undeveloped wealth of the long west coast of Vancouver Island."

Now, it seems Mr. R. E. Sommers, minister of forests, brings forth a plan, and Mr. Gagliardi also, to do something for roads in this vast country which should have been done long years ago.

I can remember many discussions regarding these roads as far back as 27 years ago, and these discussions were not by members of parliament in B.C. as they should have been. There was plenty of money in those days, yes, and dirt cheap labor.

Too much money is being wasted in Canada by governments entertaining overseas visitors from the Old Country. Irrespective of the fact that there are thousands of Canadians who loathe such attention and expense for these people, when the money could be put to better use for Canadians.

Many government members forget they are put there to represent the people of Canada and our province, and that Canada is for Canadians, who should come first at all time for everything. In closing, may I say I was very glad to see Mr. H. Cuthbert Holmes come out with his thoughts on this important subject. I am a bit surprised that our defeated Liberals can't be good boys and take their licking laying down quiet for a while, to recuperate.

Our Scandalous Grandfathers

AFTER looking over a recent historical exhibit, I am bound to say that we live here in very dull times. Our sober Victorian grandfathers, when exposed to the light, make us appear as models of propriety and appalling bore.

Fortunately there dwells among us a major Canadian historian and a special authority on our own local history. Professor Sydney G. Pettit of Victoria College, now offers us in print the fascinating inside story of the late Edward Edwards Langford, after whom, I take it, the village of Langford is named. But this is more than the story of the Langford comedy and tragedy; it is the story of a Victoria now dead but, in its time, much more lively than its successor.

Hutchison

There is only space here to say that Langford was the perfect specimen of the English remittance man who came here to manage a Hudson's Bay Company farm at Colwood in 1851 and thus began an adventure which finally involved the government of Sir James Douglas, the courts of Vancouver Island and Britain, the King's Privy Council in London and the British House of Commons.

ANY serious student who wants to understand our past or any casual reader looking for a half hour of innocent pleasure must read Mr. Pettit's new booklet—a kind of sequel to his definitive work on that incredible Victorian, Judge Matthew Baillie Begbie.

There is only space here to say that Langford was the perfect specimen of the English remittance man who came here to manage a Hudson's Bay Company farm at Colwood in 1851 and thus began an adventure which finally involved the government of Sir James Douglas, the courts of Vancouver Island and Britain, the King's Privy Council in London and the British House of Commons.

LANGFORD mismanaged the Company's farm; he lived like a king at the Company's expense in his Colwood mansion; he was fired; he ran for the new legislative Assembly; he was elected and disqualified because he had no property; and he involved himself in one of the most comical cases in the record of our courts.

This egregious person issued a pompous address to the electors of Victoria, explaining his high virtues and business achievements. On the day before the election there appeared mysteriously on billboards throughout the little town an exquisite, dead-pan parody of his manifesto to the voters. This document was the work of a master and the master, obviously, could be no other than that combination of genius and mischief, Judge Begbie.

AS an expert on the subject, Mr. Pettit has no doubt that the judge was the director of this charade. Anyway, Langford sued a man named King, the printer of the election squib, for libel.

There followed a solemn farce in the local court; the litigants fell to blows in the court room; King, says a contemporary newspaper report, called a witness "a d—d liar" and instantly "struck him in the face with his fist . . . great confusion ensued . . . the parties were at once separated, and Mr. K. placed under arrest." King announced that he would "knock down any man that calls me that, at any time or on any place," and "the spectators, at this remark, shook the building with their applause and all order was at an end."

THE libel case went on and on, with charges and counter-charges, until the British Government, weeks away in London, evidently supposed that it was in danger of a revolution among its island colonies. Endless queries sped across the Atlantic to Governor Douglas; he replied with endless solemn lip-patches; Langford, now penniless, was sent home to England by his friends and had his charges raised in Parliament; Begbie was asked what he knew of the election squib and, in a masterpiece of evasion, failed to deny that he had written it.

After a while the town settled down to the stability, good manners, and respectable boredom which we now enjoy.

THIS is the kind of jolly marginalia which the school histories always ignore but which brings the past to life when a patient excavator like Mr. Pettit goes to work. The modern fashion is to interpret history as the movement of great, anonymous and ineluctable forces until you would almost think that men had very little to do with it. In fact, they had everything to do with it, and their individual lives, their successes and failures, their intelligence and most of all their lunacies created the forces that the historians laboriously rationalize, organize and dehumanize in retrospect.

And I suspect that it is mainly because history has thus been made such a colorless, lifeless affair that hardly one Canadian in ten knows anything about the past of his country, and hence is in no position to understand its present or future.

WE need more historians like Mr. Pettit who no doubt can rationalize and organize with the best of them, but still remembers the human atoms that together created the substance we call history. One of these days, perhaps, he will write a complete history of these parts and if he does it will surprise us.

For it turns out, from his tantalizing exhibits, that right here, in a room more than a paragraph, a wild, wonderful and quite impossible epic was enacted only yesterday by actors almost forgotten, by a breed of men who make us look pitifully commonplace, pallid and sad.

University Head Replies to Dean

By DR. N. A. M. MACKENZIE, President, University of B.C.

None of this is shared or borne by the provinces.

Granting the financial difficulties of the provincial governments, it seems manifestly unfair and unwise that they should claim unlimited freedom of taxation within their spheres and, at the same time, interfere with or handicap the federal authorities in respect to these vital matters.

LIMITED PROVISIONS

The other comment has to do with education. The British North America Act, in Section 93, states that "in and for each province, the Legislature (of that province) may exclusively make laws in relation to education." It then goes on to provide in detail certain special and limited provisions having to do with "schools."

It is my own opinion that the Fathers of Confederation, in drafting this, had in mind "schools," i.e., "education," at that level only. I do not believe it ever entered their minds that this section was designed to cover the universities and the other agencies—e.g., the churches, the newspapers, etc., which directly or indirectly "educate" people.

Most of our universities at the time of Confederation were founded by or affiliated with religious denominations. Some of them had been given charters by Her Majesty Queen Victoria, or by earlier sovereigns.

To agree or admit that section 93 of the British North America Act gives the provinces exclusive jurisdiction over education in all its forms is, in my opinion, a dangerous principle, for in its widest sense, education includes all those influences which shape and mold and influence human beings. In this area I contend that the maximum of freedom is of the greatest importance and should be claimed and supported on every possible occasion.

Perhaps the most serious objection to Dean Angus's statement is that his argument disregards the importance of Canadian unity and of "Canada" as a nation. I do not believe this to have been his intention, for few have contributed as much to their country, Canada, as he has.

But the fact remains, that his article plays into the hands of the "Quebec Nationalists" and appears to support their claims—or so it seems to me.

LEGAL LOGIC

I grant him, and others, that our federalism is a fact and that the provinces do have "rights" and "interests" which must be recognized and protected. But in the world we live in unity and co-operation are indispensable, if we are to survive.

The dean's statement is an interesting and useful essay in legal logic. But in my opinion, it omits several of the most important human facts about our national life and the kind of world we live in.

Me and the Empty Life

I listened last week to a group of erudite Canadians discuss the question, "Are books and reading still fundamental?"

It was a nice open-ended question. You could run right through it, or dance around in the centre, without any sense of claustrophobia. You could approach the subject from a commercial starting point—as one publisher did with high integrity and deep scholarship. You could wander around in the subject, picking roses planted by the psychologists. You could rejoice in the number of people who are reading. Or you could lament the low tone of some stuff that is written.

Reading, it was explained to you, did not consist of ABC routines. It went considerably further than that. This is Muff. Muff is a cat. See Muff run?

Stott

One panel member, careful to quote Gallup polls and the psychologists, suggested there was a pretty small part of the population capable of really reading.

I came away packing the thought in that poor, one-half-candle-power mind of mine, that enjoyment of the full life depended on reading books. I couldn't escape a mild depression. What chance was there for the likes of me and the majority of my fellow low-I.Q. Canadians enjoying the full life? I'm still wondering. But I'm feeling a little more optimistic.

THE OTHER HALF

Men who read books tell me there are about two-and-one-half billion people in this world. Men who read books have told me that about half of the two-and-one-half billion are illiterate. A lot of those who can, as the saying goes, "read and write" haven't a hope of the full life because what they mean by reading isn't reading as the panel discussed it.

Let's take it from there. Let's ask who the original thinkers read in order to get their ideas. Let's ask if there isn't something called wisdom which isn't necessarily the product of highly academic exercise. Let's assume, just for the sake of argument, that some of the big chiefs of a primitive North American society enjoyed a measure of wisdom. Of course they enjoyed scalping, too, and feasting when game was abundant, and perpetual war—which enlightened, highly literate civilizations have obviously eliminated.

Somehow these leaders of the tribes seemed to draw a reasonably high spiritual life from the world about them and their concepts of what went on in the sky, the river and the forest. They weren't worth a hoot when it came to quoting Shakespeare and they didn't know Spinoza wasn't an ex-star quarterback for Notre Dame. But they did have what must have passed for a reasonably full life in their time.

WINE OF SCHOLARSHIP

And let's shift the research to the countries of the East. As it is told to me by folk who read books, some people over there can sit down for a month or a year, with a begging bowl before them, and, sitting as they look, can enjoy a full life of silent contemplation. Some of them never saw a book until rationing came in.

Take it from the other extreme. People who read books tell me that Edward Fitzgerald did a fair amount of reading himself. He spent up to 17 (17) years polishing his Rubaiyat of Omar Khayyam of Naisapur. Nobody seems to know how much Omar is Fitzgerald, or how much Fitzgerald is Omar. Either way, it seems that both Fitz and Omar knew quite a bit about the good life or the full life. Yet one or the other of them, perhaps both, came up with the admission that "of all that one should care to fathom, I was never deep in anything but—Wine."

That, the good folk will explain, is obviously metaphorical in its content—or else it's one of those little literary jokes.

Maybe so. On the other hand, maybe not. Just possibly these scholarly people—and may their numbers never grow less—imbibe so freely of the written word they achieve their own divine intoxication—immersing themselves more completely than Omar did in Wine. In that condition, they might not see too clearly what is fundamental to other people, what constitutes the good and full life to folk who do not share their erudition.

It is conceivable that we primitives have a good and full life in our own primitive way, conceivable even that some are so busy with things they consider fundamental they don't find time for reading.

LONDON LETTER

By WALLACE REYBURN

War in the Air

LONDON—You no doubt remember the U.S. series of half-hour television films, "Victory at Sea." Well, the BBC comes up 18 months later with the answer—"War in the Air"—a set of 15 half-hour programs that trace the history of, air power over the past 20 years.

None of us who go to press screenings of such things has been equal to the task of sitting through 7½ hours of films to see how the whole thing shapes up, but what has been seen of these BC television reveals that it is an outstanding piece of work.

The producers ran through no less than 1,000 miles of Allied film (plus reels captured from the Japanese and the Germans) to get what they wanted. The feeling is that when the series gets under way it's going to be the talk of the nation. It is full of very reminiscent shots of the Blitz, the Battle of Britain, war in the air in the Middle East and all the other aspects of wartime aerial combat and bombing. It is going to stir up a lot of exciting—and sad—memories.

DON CORNELL'S RECORD of Hold My Hand has headed the list of best-selling discs in Britain. Interesting thing is that it has reached that spot without ever having been heard on the radio. Reason: it's banned. English version of the song starts this is the wonder of Heaven, instead of the original "This is the Kingdom of Heaven, regarded here as sacrilegious. So radio listeners hear only English vocalists doing the song, never Don Cornell.

THERE'S ANOTHER of those pontifical magistrates sounding off. Roy Lyon, of Worcester, says that the unveiling of a plaque to Oscar Wilde at his London home is disgraceful. "Wilde was nothing more than a common criminal convicted of one of the foulest crimes," says Magistrate Lyon. What a fatuous thing to say.

If Mr. Lyon's attitude of mind were to be followed through to its full conclusion it would mean that we would cease to do honor to some of the world's greatest writers, artists and musicians—living and dead—whose private life happened to be as unfortunate as Wilde's. The norms of reference in judging where Oscar Wilde (or any other writer) stands in literature is the written work he produced; not his behavior as a man.

This magistrate's outburst reminds me of a passage in Somerset Maugham's The Summing Up, in which he said that it would be a good idea for judges at the Old Bailey, when they are standing in judgment on their fellow men, to be reminded that they, too, are human.

WHAT BECAME of Claire Bloom, the girl who two years ago jumped into the limelight in Limelight? After getting herself famous in the Chaplin film, she did a very good Juliet at London's Old Vic but the rest has been pretty much silence. She co-starred with James Mason in Carol Reed's film The Man Between but that one was such a flop that she really needn't have bothered. She's since been playing small parts in Shakespeare and has a not very big role in Laurence Olivier's upcoming film, Richard III. She's on record as saying that she is interested in acting rather than in the pursuit of fame. "I don't think about stardom and that sort of thing," says she. What a cliché for actresses no longer in the big time that is getting to be.

MAYOR SCORNS RCMP CLAIM TO COUNCIL

NANAIMO—RCMP made little headway Monday when it claimed $140 from the city for damages caused to a patrol car when it "scraped bottom" on a water, shut-off valve box.

"I disagree with paying the claim," said Mayor George Muir. "The car should not have been there, and you and I wouldn't have driven over that spot in normal conditions. I think the matter should be investigated."

The box extended above road level at the intersection of Pine Street and Bruce Avenue.

Duncan Chamber Approves Crofton as Pulp Mill Site

DUNCAN—Crofton as the proposed site for a B.C. Forest Products pulp mill was endorsed by Duncan Chamber of Commerce Monday by 29 "yes" votes to 11 against.

The chamber watered down a resolution favoring a forest management license for the company and instead approved an amendment to a motion which endorsed the principle of forest conservation, but withheld its recommendations on forest licenses "pending a further royal commission hearing as advocated nine years ago by Chief Justice Sloan."

Voting on the license issue was 17 for to 25 against. The motion favoring the license to B.C. Forest Products was amended twice amid lengthy discussion, with George Whitaker, logging operator, opposing the licenses as instruments

Qualicum Student Gives UN Report

QUALICUM BEACH—Success of the United Nations depends on the individual's point of view towards others, declared Margaret Simpson, Qualicum Beach High School student, to Rotary Club members at their last meeting here.

Miss Simpson was selected by teachers of School District 69 to attend the United Nations seminar at UBC last summer. As long as people are hungry, she said, nations cannot think objectively. Canadians are in an excellent position to be mediators between the two world camps of U.S. and U.S.S.R., she said.

76 Does Shot Up-Island On Week-End

Check Made at Campbell River

CAMPBELL RIVER—A game department check at Campbell River Bridge revealed that on Saturday and Sunday 76 does and 43 bucks were shot in the area north and west of here.

There were 236 hunters tallied Saturday, and 267 on Sunday.

The check was made by biologist Don Robinson, who conducted an examination of the deer and will report his findings to game clubs.

The doe season that opened Saturday will close November 30. It is the first open season on does in recent years.

GOOD WEIGHTS

Ed Panko of Courtenay shot a 104-pound doe, one of the largest taken, and George Henderson of Campbell River shot a 96-pound doe in the Salmon River area.

Largest buck recorded, a five-spike weighing 130 pounds, was shot by Daryl Fontana of Nanaimo near Ladore Dam.

Although there was no great concentration of hunters here, since the doe season extends over all of Vancouver Island, the best hunting was found at Camp Five, Camp Eight, Black River, Salmon River and in parts of the Sayward Forest.

Nanaimo Alderman Proposes Forming Community Chest

NANAIMO—Ald. George Bryce told the city council here Monday that Nanaimo should consider establishment of a community chest.

"The workingman today almost hates to go down town Saturday to do his shopping, because it seems there is always a tag day," he said.

Mayor George Muir said the idea for a community chest must come from an outside source.

"We can't do anything official about it unless the public asks for it," he said. He suggested that it might be a project for the Junior Chamber of Commerce to foster, and Ald. Miss Elsie Hall agreed that it was "hardly a matter for the city to engineer."

Junior Chamber of Commerce was granted $75 for its work in traffic safety.

A recommendation was made that an underpass be built at Waddington Road and the E. & N. Railway, as suggested by the town planning commission for the safety of children attending Princess Anne School, but no action was taken by the council.

Ald. Bryce was asked by council to arrange a meeting between the council and Beban property committee to establish a commission to administer Beban Park.

"The city has owned the park now for more than two years and absolutely nothing has been done," said Mayor Muir. "I feel it's gone far enough."

Ald. Bryce was asked to convene a meeting as quickly as possible.

Final reading was given to the fire hall-police station by-law to be presented to taxpayers next month. The $275,000 by-law, if approved, will provide for purchase of a site and construction for a combined police station and fire hall which councilmen consider "of vital importance to city of Nanaimo at this time."

Memorial Soccer Trophy

A new soccer trophy has been put into circulation here for an annual series between the Coast Soccer League representative Victoria team and district league All-Stars in aid of injured player funds. The trophy, to be known as the Sid Robbins Sr. Memorial Trophy, has been donated by the well-known Robbins family and will be up for competition each year in the best-of-three series. Victoria City, Coast League, recently tied, 2-2, with the All-Stars in the first match of the inaugural series. Here, Charley Lewis, left, president of the Victoria and District Football League; Mrs. Sid Robbins and City manager Don Wakelyn display the award. (Times Photo.)

IT'S MY VIEW

By BILL WALKER, Sports Editor

The week-end in review, or suddenly the spotlight of the sports merry-go-round swings to goalkeeping.

Marcel Pelletier is a little over a game away from a new shutout sequence for newcomers in Western League hockey, while long John Henderson, once a practice goalie for the Toronto Maple Leafs, is the talk of Boston, but has more to do than Marcel if he is to crack the National League mark.

Little Jerry Côté, a key figure in the Cougars' championship season of 1950-51 has his record of 183 minutes and 34 seconds of shutout hockey in danger, and if Marcel does break the existing standard he will have set a new league mark for consecutive shutouts—three. Tom Karakas (Portland), Bev Bentley (Saskatoon), Phil Hughes (Calgary), Doug Stevenson (Tacoma), all have two to their credit as well.

But it's a trifle different in the big time. Although Henderson is off to a great beginning as a rookie, he needs four more shutouts to cash in on all-time glory. The NHL standard for goalies is six consecutive shutouts by Alex Connell of Ottawa Senators in 1927-28. That figure also represents a total of 446 minutes and 9 seconds without allowing a tally. However, forward passing was not permitted in attacking zones at that time and the modern record of 309 minutes and 21 seconds is the one Henderson must beat. Bill Durnan of Montreal Canadiens racked up four consecutive shutouts in 1948-49 to attain the present mark. The all-time NHL record for goaling greatness is held by George Hainsworth of Montreal who, in the 1928-29 season, registered 22 shutouts in 44 games and had but 43 goals scored against him during the season.

Pelletier is also well on his way toward a possible WHL record for shutouts over the season. He has three to date in 18 games and, with more than two-thirds of the season to go, needs but four to tie the Bill Brennan of the Stamps who compiled seven blankings last year. Jerry Côté owns the Cougar club record of four.

Pelletier, incidentally, was the leading goalkeeper of the Quebec Senior Hockey League when he played for Chicoutimi in 1952-53 and was awarded the Vezina Memorial Trophy for the lowest goals-against record—2.53. He had six shutouts that season.

Victoria Cougars got an unexpected vote of approval over the week-end from an individual who only last year decried the Cougar methods of operation. Frank Currie, coach of the Calgary Stampede, when asked for his appraisal of Western League clubs, stated in a radio interview from Vancouver that the teams he figures to give his Stampede the best run to the wire are "Victoria and Edmonton."

Of the Cougars, Currie said: "They're a young team that will get better before they get worse."

Last year, in the WHL playoffs, it will be recalled that Currie castigated the Cougars for their defensive hockey, asserting, in effect, that the Cougars were the least crowd-pleasing team in the circuit. On the Stampede's recent visit here, and following a 6-0 blanking by the locals, Currie inferred that the Cougars would do better than all right if they continued to skate as they did against his cowboys.

On the same theme, coach Bud Poile of the Edmonton Flyers, when queried, rated the Cougars a likely fourth-place finisher.

Victoria City Soccer Club officials breathed more ire Saturday when North Shore United flouted a league ruling and travelled by air for their Coast League match here. The travel ruling was put in effect to prevent a recurrence of the non-appearance of the St. Andrews team here a month ago. It's about time, it seems, that the Coast League had a little more direction.

Oak Bay Retains Hope Of Cup Final Berth

Oak Bay High School Monday reinforced the slender thread from which hangs their hopes of a berth in the two-team final for the Inter-High School Soccer League title.

The green and white Oak Bay squad retained a chance at overhauling Mount View High School for second place by knocking off Esquimalt Monday, 3-1, on a muddy Esquimalt pitch.

Oak Bay is now only two points behind Mount View, who have finished their slate of games. If Oak Bay can beat fourth-place Mount Douglas Wednesday in their last game they would force a deadlock to decide the club that meets Vic High in the post-season final.

With their playoff hopes as their incentive, Oak Bay jumped into a 2-0 lead in the first half and matched Esquimalt's only goal in the second half. Mike Jefferies, Esquimalt's agile goalie, thwarted numerous other Oak Bay scoring chances.

Oak Bay's first-half goals were scored by Pete Napper and Bill Mossey at 20 and 30 minutes. Ray Bryant was Esquimalt's goal scorer in the second half but his effort was matched by Ray Hughes of Oak Bay.

Darkness forced suspension of the game partway through the second half.

Flyers Sell Haley to Quakers

EDMONTON (CP)—Right winger Len Haley of Edmonton Flyers has been sold to Saskatoon Quakers in a straight cash deal between the Western Hockey League clubs, Edmonton coach Bud Poile announced today.

To replace Haley, Edmonton will bring up 20-year-old Jo Malo from the American League—Springfield Indians. Malo played with Fort William Canadiens of the Manitoba junior loop.

MONTREAL 13-POINT CHOICE FOR GREY CUP

Als' Fans Concerned—About Seats

MONTREAL (CP)—Montreal fans are confident their Alouettes can whip Edmonton Eskimos for the Grey Cup and they want to have good seats to watch them while they do it.

Local odds-makers today quoted the Big Four champs as 13-point favorites to down the Western League title-holders. But the fans were more concerned about the seating arrangement at To-ronto's Varsity Stadium for the big game.

General manager Lew Hayman of the Alouettes touched off that hassle when he announced that more than 50 per cent of the seats allotted Montreal fans are behind the goal lines.

Messville, the Als players, who aren't worried about seats, made Monday their day off to nurse any bumps or bruises they suffered in defeating Hamilton Tiger-Cats 24-19 to win the Big Four total-points series 38-28. They go back to work today in preparation for the Edmonton tilt.

Silent Doug Walker, coach of the Montreal team, said his boys played a good game against Hamilton Saturday, but that was all. He made no predictions about the Edmonton game.

In his office, Hayman studied a diagram of Varsity Stadium amid a pandemonium of ringing phones.

"Our allotment of tickets is a little under 5,000," he explained. "But more than 50 per cent of those tickets are for the $3.50 and $5 seats; the remainder are for the top-price $8 seats."

Only the $8 seats are along the sidelines between the goal lines. The $5 seats are behind the goal lines and the $3.50 seats are in temporary bleachers in front of the ends.

"I'm not complaining about the number of tickets but this allotment of location seems odd and I'd like to find out about it," Hayman said. "After all, we are a contending team in the Grey Cup game."

Shortly after Hayman's announcement, a delegation of season subscribers banded together and sent a protest to Dr. W. A. Campbell of Kingston, Ont., president of the Canadian Rugby Union.

EDMONTON'S ANSWER

Esks Won Games They Had to—Ivy

EDMONTON (CP)—Edmonton Eskimos proved to be a clutch team when they won the Western Interprovincial Football Union title. They fight hard when the chips are down so Saturday's Grey Cup final suits the liking of the green and gold machine.

Coach Frank Ivy figures his team will come through. Looking back over his first season with the Esks, he said:

"Eskimos have won every game this year they have absolutely had to win. The Grey Cup is such a game."

The Edmonton club fielded in the early season one of the best football teams ever seen in a hospital ward. It wasn't until the injury problem eased that the Eskimos found their winning ways.

Then came the first squeeze. They had to win their last four scheduled games to finish in first place. That was accomplished.

But the team's best test of clutch play was in the third game of the WIFU playoffs with Winnipeg Blue Bombers. The series was tied 1-1.

Edmonton went into high gear, froze the feared passing of Indian Jack Jacobs, and won 10-5.

The fired-up spirit was most pronounced in Normie Kwong, ex-Calgary fullback, who hadn't shown much during the season. He carried the ball 19 times for 153 of Edmonton's 242 yards earned rushing.

The Eskimo pass defense, the best in the west, grounded Winnipeg's aerial hopes. It took Edmonton 15 ground plays on a downfield march for the only major of the game.

Esks probably will be at full strength for the crucial contest.

Steve Mendryk was the only one who missed Monday night's practice. He suffered a broken nose in last Saturday's semifinal game with Kitchener-Waterloo Dutchmen.

Grey Cup Clambake May Be Biggest Ever

By MILT MacPHAIL, Canadian Press Staff Writer

TORONTO (CP)—This year's Grey Cup week-end, a football-flavored Mardi Gras, shaped up Monday night as the biggest and best of these annual handshakes between East and West.

"We're pulling out all stops to make the show the best yet," said a confident official of the Toronto Junior Board of Trade which promotes the celebration to foster East-West goodwill.

"We've had six committees working since last Christmas on this and things are just about complete."

The celebration before and after the East-West football game has been an annual affair since 1948 when supporters of Calgary Stampede stormed into the city and staged a parade that startled Toronto. They cooked flapjacks on the streets, rode around on chuck-wagons and even put Toronto's mayor on a horse.

Then they capped it by upsetting Ottawa Rough Riders 12-7 in the game.

Officials believe this year's show will top the Calgary invasion and anything since.

Giants Get Grasso

NEW YORK (AP)—Catcher Mickey Grasso, who played for Cleveland in the 1954 World Series, was drafted Monday by New York Giants as the major league clubs picked 13 men from the minor league pool for $122,000.

Grasso began his career in the Giants' farm system and played seven games for them in 1946. He became eligible for the draft when he was sold to the Indians' Indianapolis farm club 11 days after Cleveland had lost the series in four straight to the Giants.

RAY YORK ACTS QUICKLY

Longden Escapes Injury Thanks to Rival Jockey

ALBANY, Calif. (BUP)—Jockey Johnny Longden, who started racing on Canada's prairie trails, narrowly escaped death or serious injury at Golden Gate Fields Monday, thanks to the quick and intelligent action of fellow jockey Ray York.

Longden was knocked unconscious and pinned under his mount when the horse bolted and leaped the infield fence during the parade to the post for the second race.

Both horse and jockey landed in a heap in a ditch. Longden was on his back in the ditch with his legs in the air and the horse, Kinsey Farm's four-year-old 'Im Going, straddled over him.

York, who was following

Longden aboard Mercenary in the post parade, leaped from his mount and was the first man to reach the stricken rider's side.

He saw that 'Im Going had his right rear leg hung up in the fence, and every time he moved his left rear leg it would hit Longden on the head. The slightest movement by the horse was sure to crush the jockey.

York steadied the horse, pushing its weight away from Longden and soothing the animal at the same time. He waved away fans who rushed to the rail to help.

Longden was finally extricated and rushed in an ambulance to the track hospital,

Grey Cup Dinner Dry???

All Donations Gratefully Accepted

TORONTO (BUP)—Distilleries by the dozen were expected to step in today and offer to supply the liquor for Toronto's "dry if we have to buy" Grey Cup dinner.

Mayor Leslie Saunders, a teetotaler, announced that the city would not spend taxpayers' money on drinks for the annual civic reception, but said he wouldn't object if "some other organization" picked up the tab.

Liquor advertising is banned in Ontario and the distilleries were expected to eagerly take advantage of the opportunity to display their products to such a nationally representative gathering.

City clerk George Weale, who admitted the city paid the shot for the shots last year under Mayor Allan Lamport, said rooms for the pre-dinner cocktail party were still reserved and that hundreds of invitations had been sent out.

"I'm hopeful someone will fill the breach," he said.

Mayor Saunders said he was following the usual city practice in refusing the tab for the liquor.

"It has always been the rule that the city would not provide liquor, although there may have been one or two exceptions," he said.

During a civic reception for the Duchess of Kent, he pointed out, the cocktails were bought by the Board of Trade.

Sullivan, who was suspended indefinitely at last Friday's inquiry, will remain suspended until he carries out the commission's orders regarding the payment of 19 boxers.

Navy Surprises Clippers; Ashbee Paces C & C Squad

Navy 6, Nanaimo 5; C & C 6, Drake 2

By DENNY BOYD

The Navy hockey club may not be the greatest thing that ever hit the Vancouver Island Amateur Hockey League but they are the greatest stoppers since the invention of bathtub plugs.

The sailors had a tough tour of duty handed them Monday night as they went up against a Nanaimo Clippers club that had scored a 14-1 victory over the hot and cold Drake Hotel squad Saturday night.

But disregarding past history, the sailors turned pure speed into a 6-5 victory although they were close to death's door when the final whistle sounded.

In the first game of the interesting double-header, C & C Taxi whipped Drakes 6-2 in a game that turned into a shambles in the third period.

But it was the Navy team that deserved and got the kudos. With several old hands back aboard, namely Joe Woods, Dad McKay and Roy Derry, the sailors skated rings and rectangles around the power-packed Nanaimo club.

Outstanding in the Navy cause was the line of Orv Coulter, Paul Wannamaker and Neil Standley. Little Johnny Bond played his usual bird-dog game and Fred Currah was some shucks in goal.

The last minute of the game was 60 seconds of tension-drenched excitement. With 40 seconds left Nanaimo had a face-off in the Navy end. Clippers pulled their goalie and sent six forwards up for the face-off and, although they buzzed all around Currah's net, they were unable to get the saw-off goal.

Four-Goal Don Roms Again

Effortless Don Ashbee, who makes the job of scoring goals look like child's play, was the big noise of the first game. Ashbee, picked up by C & C Taxi after being released by Victoria Cougars, has his second straight four-goal night since joining the league.

Never really skating hard but stick-handling like a demon, Ashbee scored three goals in the first period and one in the second. He was picked up by C & C Taxi after being released by Victoria Cougars, has his second straight four-goal night since joining the league.

Of the 11 penalties handed out nine of them came in the hectic third period, including a misconduct to Drakes' Les Corby for allegedly trying to trip referee Bert Nelson.

With Victoria Cougars on the road this week, the VIAHL will present another double-header at Memorial Arena Wednesday night, with C & C meeting Navy in the opener in a battle for second place and Drakes taking on Nanaimo in the feature game at 9.

OUTDOOR FRONT

With DENNY BOYD

It is difficult to estimate just how old the sport of falconry, or hawking, is. It was a popular sport of English aristocracy in the 16th century when hunting birds were used more for sport than to provide meat for the table.

But it goes much further back in history than that. Aristotle wrote of falconry and the sport is said to go back to 2000 B.C. in China.

As would be expected, it was the introduction of firearms to hunting, around the middle of the 17th century, that started the decline of falconry.

But now there seems to be a ground swell of interest growing among certain outdoorsmen back to this centuries-old sport.

Members of the Victoria Fish-Game Association heard an interesting address by Frank Beebe recently on the subject: Should falconry be legalized in B.C.?

While there is neither legislation for or against falconry, Beebe wishes to have the sport legalized to put it on a more secure footing.

His address to the Victoria Fish-Game Association was given in an effort to get added support for the movement and have the powerful body endorse falconry.

Although there was no final decision made by the membership—the decision was referred to the executive for further consideration—it is reported that Beebe's talk met with general approval among the outdoor-wise members.

Apparently the only objection members foresaw concerned falconers seeking to have their birds protected from hunters. However, Beebe said, he did not think falconers would ever press such a point.

Hawk-Taming a Royal Challenge

Perhaps one of the things that makes falconers so proud of their sport is the tremendous difficulty involved in training a hunting bird. Hawks must be captured in their natural habitat as they will not mate in captivity.

Once the bird is trapped, a patience-trying period of step-by-step training follows in which the bird must be purged of its inborn instinct to devour its kill. It is a virtual impossibility to teach the bird to retrieve its kill. However, hawks can be taught to stand over their kill and surrender it to the trainer. The bird must be taught to return to its master until next released to search for a victim.

Always, there is the nerve-racking possibility that the bird, upon which countless hours of patient training have been spent, will literally fly the coop or fall before a hunter's gun. In England it is illegal to shoot a hunting hawk but no such rule exists in Canada.

There certainly is no danger of hunting hawks depleting our supply of game birds or small animals. Beebe has been hunting birds all fall with his hawks and has yet to fill his cooking pot. However, he counts his hours with his favorite hawks as well worth the unsuccessful quests.

No Half-Way Measures in Kill

There are those who say the use of hawks for hunting is not merciful, but we can't go along with that. The kill by a hawk of a game bird, plunging straight down at speeds up to and exceeding 75 miles an hour, is quick and complete. If the first strike misses, the victim is usually far away before the hawk has time for a second strike. It is usually a case of instant kill or total failure. Death comes quickly, far more quickly than for a bird which has been winged with half a load of birdshot.

Clearly, falconry is a sport that will never reach sweeping popularity. It requires intensive training and hours of patience, with small rewards except those that come from partially taming a wild creature.

However, the Victoria Fish-Game Association is to be congratulated for having the interest to investigate one of the oldest and most forgotten methods of hunting.

Canadian Daily Newspaper Circulation has hit a record high of more than 3,750,000 in spite of competition for the reader's interest from television, radio, magazines, week-end publications and other media.

Retail and Classified Advertising Linage has also reached a record high.

NEVER BEFORE

has such a high dollar volume of national (manufacturers') advertising been placed in daily newspapers—and this in spite of the increasing competition of other media.

Advertisers at both the manufacturer and retailer level are becoming more analytical and selective in their choice of advertising media as business competition steadily increases.

Daily newspapers welcome the fullest investigation of their ability to SELL merchandise. No other medium can LINK the interest of the man who buys, and the man who sells, as can the daily newspaper.

Gas Pipeline Decision Imminent Says Paper

$400 Million Project to Carry Natral Gas From Peace River to U.S.; Supply for B.C.

VANCOUVER (CP)—The Vancouver Herald says an agreement, entailing the construction of a $400,000,000 pipeline to pipe Peace River natural gas to the United States, is expected to be signed "within 48 hours."

The newspaper, quoting a "city stock broker," said Monday night only a few minor details stood in the way of the agreement. The pipeline would stretch from San Juan basin in New Mexico to Fort St. John, B.C.

The story says the British Columbia section of the line would be built by Westcoast Transmission Co., would reach the California border and would cost more than $100,000,000.

Companies involved in the venture with Westcoast, the Herald says, are Pacific Northwest Pipeline Corp., Pacific Gas and Electric and El Paso Natural Gas.

Listed as main steps in the agreement were:

1. Construction of a pipeline by Westcoast from Fort St. John to California, supplying natural gas to the entire province of B.C.; Seattle and other cities directly to the south, with excess going into the California market.

2. Construction by U.S. companies of a line from San Juan basin to meet the B.C. line at the California border.

3. Line from the California border into eastern Washington and Oregon.

The story said the agreement, when signed, would go before the federal power commission in Washington for certification—expected to take about a month.

Start of the Canadian line was said to be planned for early in 1955 and would take about two years to complete.

B.C. the story says, is expected to sell 500,000,000 cubic feet of gas per day under the agreement.

Last Rites Thursday For Music Patroness

Many Successful Artists Owe Careers To Help of Mrs. Beatrix Cameron

The woman who possibly did more for music than any other person in Victoria died at her 1262 Rockland Avenue residence Monday at the age of 82.

Mrs. Beatrix Cameron helped scores of musicians and was responsible for bringing many world-renowned concert artists to Victoria audiences.

She was the widow of James Oscar Cameron, lawyer, shipbuilder, logger and lumberman, who died here in 1943.

A patroness of the arts, Mrs. Cameron was the founder of the Victoria Musical Arts Society and a strong supporter of the Victoria Symphony Society. She also built in 1948 the J. O. Cameron Memorial Pavilion, which is used for free concerts in Beacon Hill Park.

Mrs. Cameron was widely known in other parts of Canada and the United States as a woman with a "big heart and a wonderful vision." She personally helped a number of young artists along the exacting road to musical success.

At least five well-known artists have been her proteges, amongst them Seattle pianist Randolph Hokanson, who is widely known throughout Canada and the United States.

MUSIC LOVERS

Her home, "Roseboro," was famous as a rendezvous of music lovers and visiting famous concert musicians, dancers, authors and players. Hundreds of Victoria music students have been invited to her home and received encouragement from her and her husband before he died.

While music played a tremendous part in her life, Mrs. Cameron had also a number of other interests. She was a member of the Canadian Authors' Association for years, a member of the Auxiliary to the YMCA, Canadian Club, Arts Centre as well as the Women's Auxiliary Air Service.

Born in Brownsville, Tennessee, Mrs. Cameron was the daughter of Judge A. A. Freeman and Mrs. Freeman. She began playing the piano at eight and carried on her studies through her school days in Washington, D.C., and in New Mexico.

She married J. O. Cameron, a lawyer, in New Mexico in 1893. Her husband and her father practiced together until 1905, when they all moved to Victoria. Her husband became president and founder of the Cameron Lumber Company.

She is survived by four sons, William, James and George of Victoria, and Donald of Los Angeles, Calif.; six grandchildren and 16 great-grandchildren.

Funeral services will be held on Thursday at 2:30 p.m. from Thomson Funeral Chapel. Rev. Canon George Biddle will officiate at the service.

5,000-Year-Old Boat Of Cheops Examined

Scientists, Engineers Open Huge Egyptian Gallery of the Cheops Period; Bow Seen

CAIRO, Egypt (UP)—A team of scientists and engineers today carefully opened a great limestone-sealed gallery of the Cheops pyramid, exposing to view the bow of a cedarwood boat in which Egypt's ancient ruler hoped to journey to paradise.

A musty odor spread upward from the boat pit which had been sealed 5,000 years ago, preserving Cheops' solar boat against time, weather and marauders.

The long-closed gallery was opened with the removal of a huge limestone slab from the forward end of the sand-buried, rock-cut drydock in which the boat of the pharaoh lies.

For the first time it became possible to see the full length of the gracefully fashioned craft, one of a type in which Egypt's ancient rulers believed their souls would be borne through the heavens to the kingdom of the gods.

The bow of the craft was directly beneath the opening from which the first stone was removed.

It was gently rounded in an upward curve and finely carved. At its extremity, the bow was ornamented with a carved lotus blossom—the floral emblem of ancient Egypt.

The delicate process of opening the gallery was a feat unprecedented in Egyptology.

When the first great stone was pried loose, it revealed that the oldest "drydock" in history was intact and that the entire boat was well preserved. Until today only a portion of the boat had been seen through a small opening cut in the limestone roof.

Egypt's minister of education, Kamal el Hussein, and director of antiquities, Dr. Mustafa Amer, watched the removal of the stone block.

Archeologist Kamal El Malakh, discoverer of the solar boat, anxiously supervised the team of 30 workmen who did the manual job of hauling away the limestone slab, weighing 16.2 tons.

The rectangular stone was lifted by a block and tackle and two 20-ton hand-operated cranes.

The heaving workmen were able to move the stone only a fraction of an inch at a time. The work was handled carefully to prevent collapse of other sections of the stone roof or the falling of debris which might damage the boat itself.

Panel Discussion Held on Education

METCHOSIN—H. Parrott of Belmont High, Mrs. M. Helgeson, Mrs. E. Friend, and Cmdr. H. Gardner took part in a panel discussion on the purpose of education, held at the regular meeting of the Metchosin P.T.A. Plans were launched for a P.T.A.-sponsored Christmas concert and party for school children.

The mazurka, a lively dance something like a polka, originated in Poland in the 16th century.

Thetis Lake District Suggested as Ideal Recreational Area

By HUMPHRY DAVY
Thetis Lake Park, which the Capital Region Planning Board suggested Monday be developed as a recreational area, ranks as one of the most beautiful, natural spots on South Vancouver Island—an area which could become another "Stanley Park."

This conclusion is reached after a survey of potential recreational areas around Victoria this summer.

I have found many leading citizens share the same view. They included Cyril Jones, city engineer; ex-alderman John Worthington, Dr. Clifford Carl, director of the provincial museum and several park officials. They rank its potential recreational value higher than Goldstream Park.

and the Gorge — two other spots which the planning board recommended should be investigated.

These are some of the facts I found to support this view:
• In only a 10-minute drive from the City Hall via the new Island highway, Victorians could be enjoying themselves in a large natural playground. There is no other natural area so near the city comparable to Thetis Lake Park.

The park takes in 975 acres containing timber measured at over 4,500,000 board feet. The trees are between 60 and 80 years old.

Several artificial beaches could be created along the shores of the main lake. They would provide ample swimming facilities for children. The lake at present lacks beaches, but engineers informed me that these could easily be constructed at not too costly a figure.

Thetis Lake, I found, is actually made up of two lakes separated by a narrow neck of land. Many people have seen the first lake, but few have ever explored the second which excels the former in beauty and interest.

others could be developed on the south side.

The second lake, I feel, should be preserved in its natural state with picnic sites developed along its shore. I haven't yet seen a lake which can match this one in beauty on the southern end of Vancouver Island.

I paddled my canoe in and out a small bay covered with golden water lilies—a scene resembling a Japanese water garden. There were stands of copperhead bullrushes along the shore against a background of towering trees.

In one long, winding inlet, I saw a deer which did not move as I passed. Here and there a flock of ducks—not as tame as the residents of Beacon Hill park—took off at the sound of my paddle. As a climax, an osprey plunged after a fish in the calm waters.

There are two other small lakes in the park, of no value for swimming, but interesting for anyone interested in wild life. They are teeming with bird life, which include species which are rarely seen around Victoria.

The park is also ideal territory for bridal paths.

It is also suitable for the establishment of an outdoor theatre as the nights are not as cool there as in Beacon Hill Park.

Some of the views from the surrounding hills are excellent.

The value of Thetis park is that it is a natural playground—a type of park which is fast growing in popularity in Eastern Canada.

Its upkeep, I was told, would not be too expensive if the three municipalities pooled their resources. Some development work has already been done by the provincial government.

All that is needed is a sound policy on future improvement and administration.

BETWEEN TIMES

OUR VERY OWN ISLAND DIGEST

(Special to The Times)

DUNKIN', V.I.—Lemuel Q. Prodiwitty, well-known ruba-baga grower of this area, is reported in good condition today following an incident involving Babe, his pet ox.

Babe has been a respected member of the Prodiwitty household for many years.

However, Babe turned on Mr. Prodiwitty recently and caused him considerable inconvenience by goring him. Investigation revealed that Mr. Prodiwitty, immediately before the incident, had been using a sharp stick to get Babe to pull a plow.

Interviewed by The Times as he reclined in his bed (on his stomach) Mr. Prodiwitty said: "I didn't know it was goaded."

(By our Cumbersome correspondent).

CUMBERSOME, V.I.—Building is on the increase here. Authorities are hopeful a new boom has been touched off. Said building inspector Horace Flibbertwicz:

"I am indeed hopeful. I always like new booms. They DO sweep so clean."

First structure in the new boom is taking shape on the back lot of Col. Reginald O'Casey Flumworthy (Ret.). It is a small, but graceful building, of vertical design, intended as a double-purpose structure.

One of the purposes, Col. Flumworthy said, is a reading room.

BOWSER, V.I.—Woof, woof. Yappity-yap-yip. Gurruff. Ahrrrrrrr-roof.

(By J. SMITH)

GENTLEMANSMITH, V.I.—Two men named Smith were arraigned in Gentlemansmith court today on charges of causing undue noise and furor, also assault causing actual.

The first man named Smith (Note to editor: I'm not sure, I think his initial is J.) was accused of accosting the second man named Smith (I'm pretty sure his initial is J.) and belaboring him about the ears.

Court asked the second man named Smith why he had done this.

The man said, what would you have done? The court said, how would I know what I would have done? What caused you to do what you did? Did? The court asked.

So the second man named Smith told the court: "I bought a steer from this man just after last Halloween, and I figured he gyped me."

"In fact," he said, "I am sure he did. Because two days ago, the dang steer blew up."

"You should have seen the place," he said. "T-Bone steaks scattered all over the landscape. Sirloin roast, medium rare, on top of the woods. It was a mess," said the second man named Smith, "we was in a stew."

"Just a minute," said the first man named Smith, "why are you blaming me for this?"

"Cause I'm certain this steer I bought last Halloween had been eatin' fire-crackers," said the second man named Smith.

"Case dismissed," said the court. "Any fool can see this man has been given a bomb steer."

Rain, Winds To Follow Foggy Night

Victorians are in for another deluge of rain Wednesday, but it won't be quite as bad as the week-end downpour, which flooded ditches and low-lying areas, weatherman William Mackie said today.

Rain and lashing winds are expected to sweep over south Vancouver Island late tonight, bringing to an end two days of mild weather, he said.

The storm is moving in from the eastern Pacific where winds are reported blowing at 70 miles per hour.

Monday's warm weather, one of the mildest days recorded in November in Victoria, was followed during the night by a "soupy fog" which bogged down traffic in several areas of the city.

The Gorge Road, Fairfield district, James Bay and some sections of Oak Bay were chiefly affected.

Traffic was slowed down to a snail's pace on some streets in Oak Bay where visibility was zero. Fog lights were of little use. Some motorists were so tired of "feeling their way" along the roads that they parked their cars for the night and returned home on foot.

Trans-Canada Air Lines to Vancouver cancelled its last two round trips to Vancouver due to the heavy fog which also prevailed on the lower mainland. Some flights to Seattle also were cancelled.

RCMP reported that Up-Island centres were not affected by fog, but visibility was poor at some spots along the Island Highway.

He suffered multiple fractures of his left leg, right hip, arm injuries and face and scalp lacerations.

Police impounded the car of Michael E. Lougheed, 214 Menzies.

$3,000 Bail In Charge of Manslaughter

New bail of $3,000 was set today for Arthur Herman Cook, Otter Point, after he was committed for higher court trial on a manslaughter charge.

Preliminary hearing of the case concluded before Magistrate A. I. Thomas in RCMP court this morning. Cook was charged following the death of Geoffrey E. Ashton at Sooke, Nov. 6.

Ashton was allegedly struck by a truck driven by the accused. He died a few moments later.

Defense counsel George Gregory said his client was freed on bail shortly after the commitment was ordered.

Indoor Games Planned by Highland Group

Victoria Highland Games Association will hold an indoor meet early in February, it was decided at an association meeting Monday night.

A. MacLeod Baird, president, said the date and place will be decided shortly.

July 30 was set as the date for the association's annual Highland games.

MAGISTRATE THANKED FOR OAKALLA SENTENCE

Robert Watson, 47, no fixed address, today thanked Magistrate H. C. Hall for a six-month sentence to Oakalla.

"That's all I have been looking for—a chance to get out when the good weather comes," he said.

Watson had pleaded for leniency Monday when he admitted to stealing an overcoat from a city department store. Released from prison Nov. 1, he said: "I've had enough jail, I want to stay outside."

"I've tried every possible means to go straight. I've even knocked on doors and asked for odd jobs. I couldn't get anything at the employment office."

City prosecutor Alan Bigelow told the court that Watson had been convicted of breaking and entering, theft and shop-breaking since 1946.

Magistrate Hall said that in giving him the six-month term he was endeavoring to help him over the winter.

Insurance Men Doubtful Of Auto Rate Reduction

The fender job that used to cost $25 to straighten, and now costs $75 for a replacement, was blamed today by insurance men as one of the chief factors that will keep automobile insurance rates at their present level, at least for another year.

Although the sweeping reductions anticipated for next year will not materialize, the improved highway accident picture in B.C. eventually will result in cheaper rates, it was stated.

Month-by-month fluctuations in the number of accidents are seen only as ripples on the insurance rate level. Trends over a three-year period determine rates, according to insurance men.

Here in B.C. rates are decided separately for the five territories of Vancouver Island, Greater Vancouver, Fraser Valley, Okanagan, and the remainder of the province.

Car Impounded

Still in "poor" condition at Jubilee Hospital at press time today was John Campbell Petterick, 70, 1171 Rockland, who was knocked down by a car early Monday.

He suffered multiple fractures of his left leg, right hip, arm injuries and face and scalp lacerations.

Police impounded the car of Michael E. Lougheed, 214 Menzies.

Further Attempts Planned in City Truckers' Dispute

Further attempts to conciliate a wage agreement between local cartage operators and truck drivers will be made Monday, teamsters' secretary Bob Milliken said today.

Drivers have rejected a recommendation by Conciliation officer W. T. McLaughlin last Oct. 8 that increases of 10, 5 and 2.5 cents an hour in some classifications be granted, although this was favorable, with some modification, to operators.

Truckers are sticking by demands for a 15-cents-an-hour increase "down the line," plus a 40-hour week and all statutory holidays.

Two Escape In Car Crash

Two passengers in a small car escaped with minor injuries after a collision and upset at Vancouver and Meares Streets today.

Mrs. May Ray, 52, 880 Somerset, suffered a bruised eye but was released from St. Joseph's Hospital after X-rays. John Fielden, 39, 109 Richmond Road, was also discharged after treatment to a knee injury.

Police said a car driven east on Meares by R. A. Burley, 126 Lurline, was in collision with another driven south on Vancouver by Jack W. Milligan, 1331 Hampshire. The Milligan car was turned on its side by the force of the collision.

The accident occurred at 8:25 a.m.

Veterans Give Special Medal To Maj. Wheadon

A unique, specially-struck gold medal, symbolic of life membership in the Army, Navy and Air Force Veterans in Canada, was awarded to Major T. R. Wheadon at his home Sunday.

In a surprise visit, officials of the Victoria, provincial and Dominion executives of the organization presented Maj. Wheadon with the membership, a tribute from friends all across Canada, according to Hugh McGivern, first vice-president of the provincial command and president in the absence of the major whose ill-health has kept him at home.

Maj. Wheadon, said Mr. McGivern, has given everything, even his health, in promoting the welfare of war veterans.

Toward Mutual Understanding

Despite these points of friction, Quebec and the rest of Canada had made great strides towards mutual understanding. The more all Canadians become increasingly Canadian-minded on the broad plane, the more tolerant they are growing and the more open to reciprocal understanding.

Speaking for his newspaper, Mr. Filion said it was critical of Mr. Duplessis on nearly every question, "but we back him on the tax issue with the federal government."

One issue was margarine, banned in Quebec. "We don't see why this should be so," said Mr. Filion, one-time secretary of the Quebec Farmers' Union. "He just wants to keep the farm vote."

Le Devoir, said the publisher, was responsible for the recent shake-up in the Montreal police department, which stemmed from a series of articles published in 1949 and 1950 by the crusading lawyer Pax Plante.

While executives in large Quebec technical industries were largely made up of English-speaking executives, this was gradually being changed, he said, with emphasis in Quebec universities now being placed on technical and scientific education rather than solely the humanities.

Of the suggestion of corruption in government circles in Quebec, Mr. Filion referred to the Petawawa "horse" payroll

Parked Car Hit; Duncan Man Fined

D'Arcy Smith, Duncan, told police after a collision on Gorge Road early today, it was caused when the car ahead stopped suddenly and his car ran into it.

Police said the car he hit had been properly parked and there was no one in it at the time of the crash.

They added that Smith's car had driven the parked car 59 feet, across a sidewalk and into a fence. Damages totaled $1,330, they said.

Smith pleaded guilty to dangerous driving in city police court today. He was fined $50 or seven days and lost his license for three months.

'Rest of Canada Shuts Out Quebec'

It is not Quebecers who shut themselves up in Quebec, it is the rest of Canada which drives them back into their "reserve," Gerard Filion, publisher of Le Devoir, Montreal, said here today.

And one of the main causes springs from "inequality of school treatment."

He said that the day every French-Canadian throughout the country enjoys the same advantages and privileges as his English-speaking fellow citizen "will see the last obstacle to unity in the country disappear."

French-Canadians have always held as "sacred" their educational rights, but their experience since Confederation has been distinctly bad.

"There is practically not one single province which has not taken some measures to restrict or bring about the entire disappearance of the rights of French-Canadians to schools of their own language and religion," he said.

Educational Rights Chief Complaint Cause

By TONY DICKASON

At present, in Ontario, the situation was almost satisfactory and that province was showing the most understanding and generosity.

In B.C., he said, French-Canadian students had no rights at all, as in Manitoba, Nova Scotia, P.E.I. and Newfoundland. Other provinces made only minor concessions.

Under Quebec's constitution both Catholic and Protestant schools of Quebec were granted "all the powers, privileges and duties conferred by the Act in Upper Canada, at the time of union, to separate schools and to school boards of the Roman Catholic subjects of Her Majesty."

more security there than at Ottawa.

So "Quebecers believe in sticking to their rights and refuse to entrust the smallest iota of these rights to the 'mere goodwill' of an English-speaking majority."

There, he said, was the origin of the permanent struggle which has never ceased to exist between Quebec and Ottawa.

Premier Maurice Duplessis rejects federal taxation proposals because he believes that the people of Quebec would never pardon him for abandoning their acquired rights.

Law Not Strictly Enforced

Mr. Filion said that if the Quebec government strictly enforced this law, Protestant schools of Quebec would not have any status beyond the primary school, as the Ontario Act did not recognize the separate school except for elementary teaching grades.

The French-Canadian feels he belongs to a minority, and is thus easily fearful and suspicious. It is only in Quebec they control the government and, said Mr. Filion, it was quite natural for them to feel

Post Office Needs 550 for Yule Rush

Applications for employment at the Post Office for Christmas mailing rush will be accepted by National Employment Service, 1039 Johnson, and not by the postmaster's office, it was reported today.

Postmaster R. F. Reid has filed requisition for 400 men and 150 women for the temporary period.

ASK The TIMES

Q—Can you please tell me where to send a child's book to be published? Will you name a few good publishers?

—Miss T. C.

A—There is a lengthy list of this country's publishing houses in the Canadian Almanac. The reference department of the Victoria Public Library has the 1954 Almanac. You may see it in the library, and also a number of other works dealing with the publishing of books which will be of help to you.

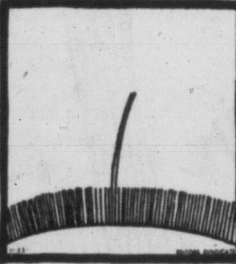

Q—How old is the city of Edmonton, Alta., in comparison with Victoria?—T. G.

A—Edmonton was incorporated as a town in 1892, and as a city in 1904, approximately one year before Alberta was erected into a province. Victoria's year of incorporation was 1862.

Anyone wishing a question answered is invited to send the problem along to The Times, addressed to "Ask The Times" Editor. Questions and answers will be published daily.

All questions should deal with matters of fact and be of general interest. The Times does not undertake to solve conundrums.

DROODLES

I don't wear a crew cut any more as my hair is starting to thin out (nothing serious—just in the front and on top and in the back—the sides are still in fine shape). However, I'm taking treatments from a woman named Madame de Futile (the futile method, she calls it) and there's already an improvement. Before taking the treatments I had a bald spot in back the size of a half dollar. Today it's disappeared and I have three bald spots the size of quarters. I figure I'm two bits ahead. But I may have to stop as the secret of the futile method is massage. She keeps massaging my head to give me a loose scalp, and my scalp has gotten so loose it keeps slipping down over my eyes. Makes reading difficult.

Clips Hold Kiddies' Mitts
So They Can't Lose Them!

By PENNY SAVER

Now is the season of scarves and mittens . . . how many mothers of young children groaned after that word, "mittens?" I know why. If they did . . . they pictured themselves forever knitting or buying mittens until spring arrives, as they probably did last year, when their carefree offspring took off, forgot about them and consequently lost some mitts. For the price of 35 pennies, you can prevent it happening again this year. That small sum will buy a pair of kiddie clips, that will keep junior's mittens with him at all times.

These mitten-savers are a combination of elastic and strong metal clips. You snap one clip to the inside of junior's coat sleeve and the other clip to his mitten. He can take his mittens on or off as he pleases, but however he wears them, he doesn't lose them.

Fasten baby's diapers with the new, adorable chickie pins. They are large-size safety pins having plastic heads of baby chicks instead of the regular metal tips. Pin point fits in the back. Price for a set of eight chickie pins is 79 cents. You get two pink, two blue, two green and two yellow.

If you are planning on sending 1955 calendars to friends overseas, let me suggest some that are strictly Canadian. There are 12 pages in this type calendar, one for each month, and on each there is an artistic pencil sketch of some typical Canadian scene.

The artist, Edward Goodall, has done them mostly on the Canadian Rockies and other British Columbia and Alberta scenes. For the price of $1 you are getting a really worthwhile calendar.

Roll-away table mirrors make excellent bases for table centre Christmas scenes. They are made of small squares of mirrored glass and you can place them flat, or stand them up and shape them around the back and sides of an arrangement of flowers.

And they actually can be "rolled away"! This idea makes them easily stored until you wish to frame another table arrangement.

Price is $2.25. However, if you wish a tinted peach roll-away mirror, you pay a little more . . . $2.95.

Extension Courses
At University

Miss Marjorie V. Smith, family life and group development supervisor, UBC department of extension, will conduct 12 weekly meetings at the university titled "Leadership in Parent Education Discussion Groups." The first session will be held on Jan. 10 and deadline for applications will be Jan. 8. PTA members and others interested may write or telephone the University of British Columbia, department of extension, for further information or enrollment forms.

Students will review theories of child development and parent-child relationships. Use of instructional aids, such as books, pamphlets, plays and films, will also be taught.

A correspondence and demonstration course in "Child Development and Pre-School Education" is also being offered by the UNC department of extension.

Correspondence instruction will be followed by a short demonstration series on pre-school methods to be attended in person by students. Certificates awarded will be recognized by the welfare institutions board of health and welfare. Women who wish to train as supervisors for pre-school child centres may make further inquiries through Miss Smith at the university.

Treat Your Feet Right
And They'll Repay You

We take our poor feet for granted. It's a good thing that they do not take us for granted. If they did we might fall flat on our faces. As it is, no matter how kind they are, if we neglect them, they can have an awful revenge!

When your feet are tired or aching or burning, or your shoes do not fit properly, you feel tired all over. This affects your personality and even your facial contour, which will drop under the repercussions of such distress.

There are a few general rules to remember about care of the feet.

Overweight is a burden on the arches of our feet, which must support us. Pregnancy has the same tendency to break down the arches. Pains in the feet or arches or calves of the legs, or even in the thighs may be a symptom of weak arches.

It is always good policy to take arch strengthening exercises, especially if your arches are contentally weak, or if you are overweight or pregnant. If you would like to know whether you have weak arches or flat feet put some flour on a paper on the floor, step into it with one foot, letting your body weight fall on the foot, and then step off of the paper onto the floor. If the entire imprint of your foot shows, and there is no space between the heel and the front part of your foot, you are in for trouble.

Most weak arches can be greatly helped by exercises. If your condition is extreme you will need help from a specialist.

Even the normal foot needs care. It requires care in the correct fitting of shoes, in being given enough support from shoes. It requires a frequent change of pace from high heels to low heels. If you are going to wear high heels most of the time, and then occasionally wear low heels, you are certain to feel great discomfort, because your back leg muscles will have shortened and cannot be suddenly stretched.

The best rule is to wear low or moderate heels in everyday life and use high heels for special occasions.

Also remember that your feet take the brunt of it! They become dry in winter time. Use a soft cloth or brush on them when taking your bath, and then treat them to a body lotion.

If you would like to have my exercises for the arches, send a stamped, self-addressed envelope with your request for leaflet No. 14, "Take Care of Your Feet," to Josephine Lowman in care of this newspaper.

Ancient drama will come to life on CBC Wednesday night this week.

"Oedipus Rex" Sophocles' gripping study of a man caught in a web of fate, will be carried by the CBC at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Produced by Esse W. Ljungh, the play, E. F. Watling's translation, will star John Drainie, Eleanor Stewart and Budd Knapp.

And for those who would like to guide themselves along during the play, a printed version is published by Penguin Books.

I see where Robert Harlow has taken over as station manager for CBU, Vancouver.

Formerly talks producer for the station, this jump for Harlow will entail overall responsibility for the corporation's West Coast station.

Reminds me of a rumor that circulated a while back that former CBC publicity boy Gil Clark would become the new manager. Some-one was way off base on that one.

We didn't carry the item here, but at least one Vancouver columnist stuck his neck out. Bet it's red!

HIGHLIGHTS FOR TONIGHT

Lux Radio Theatre at 8.
Midnight Concert at 11.30.

7:00-Where Are You?

By BILL PARKER

Ancient drama will come to life on CBC Wednesday night this week.

"Oedipus Rex" Sophocles' gripping study of a man caught in a web of fate, will be carried by the CBC at 8 p.m. Wednesday.

Produced by Esse W. Ljungh, the play, E. F. Watling's translation, will star John Drainie, Eleanor Stewart and Budd Knapp.

And for those who would like to guide themselves along during the play, a printed version is published by Penguin Books.

I see where Robert Harlow has taken over as station manager for CBU, Vancouver.

Formerly talks producer for the station, this jump for Harlow will entail overall responsibility for the corporation's West Coast station.

Reminds me of a rumor that circulated a while back that former CBC publicity boy Gil Clark would become the new manager. Some-one was way off base on that one.

We didn't carry the item here, but at least one Vancouver columnist stuck his neck out. Bet it's red!

HIGHLIGHTS FOR TONIGHT

Tax Rulings Puzzle Island Nurserymen

Why are pansy plants subject to the 10 per cent federal excise tax when wallflowers are exempt? When cut flowers are produced and sold by the producer at both wholesale and retail levels, how should the tax be applied? The act states all potted plants are taxable whether sold in, or out, of pots. Does this affect plants listed as non-taxable when they are grown in a pot or container to facilitate transplanting? Questions of this nature were posted to J. A. Whan, customs and excise department, by members and guests at the meeting of the V.I. Association of Nurserymen and Allied Trades.

The difficulties encountered, when an act designed for all Canada has to be interpreted in an area which has a climate entirely different from that of the rest of the continent, were clearly evident.

It is not sufficient for the local grower to know which plants are hardy perennials and which are greenhouse perennials. Under the act all hardy perennials are not subject to the tax, but in the appended list of taxable plants chrysanthemum roots, gallardia, and pansies, all hardy perennials on the west coast, are included.

Mr. Whan explained that the plants in the taxable and non-taxable groups are arranged according to their behavior in the greater portion of the Dominion. To write a special act covering this coastal area, the Niagara Peninsula and possibly the coast of Nova Scotia would be impractical.

As it became evident that rulings from Ottawa would be required to clarify several points common to various groups of local growers, the speaker stressed the value of membership in an organized body to obtain recognition of local conditions.

Only in recent years have azaleas and rhododendrons been removed from the list of taxable plants. While these are hardy outdoor plants on the West Coast, elsewhere in Canada they are sold in pots or tubs for greenhouse and conservatory decoration, classifying as florist's plants and subject to the tax.

Freight Rates Loom No. 1 Commons Thorn

Cabinet Meets to Continue Drafting 1955 Legislative Program; Stiff Arguments Seen

By JAMES R. NELSON
OTTAWA (BUP)—The cabinet meets today to continue drafting its 1955 legislative program, and railway freight rates rose as the most thorny problem to be handled by the new session of Parliament.

The cabinet is likely to be quizzed diligently by opposition members on continuance of the 1954 Crows Nest Pass rates on grain movements, which were criticized in a railway arbitration award Monday by British Columbia Chief Justice Gordon M. Sloan as mainly to blame for keeping railway workers behind employees in other industries in fringe benefits.

The old Crows Nest Pass rates on grain have not been changed in 57 years. Grain accounted for over 44 per cent of the railways' traffic in the west, but resulted in a loss under the present rates of 6.8 per cent, Sloan said. Other main commodities represented 30 per cent of the traffic and contributed 85 per cent to the total overhead.

Sloan said this disparity was "a major factor contributing to the present serious decline in rail revenue." "The effect of these rates... wherein their application results in loss of rail revenues should be shouldered in some fair degree by the national treasury," he said.

The cabinet will be faced with the question, when parliament meets in January, of whether taxpayers generally should shoulder grain movement expenses "in some fair degree" and what the degree should be.

What Will They Do With the Old Ones?

LONDON (Reuters)—Growing children should have five new pairs of shoes a year to insure healthy development of their feet, a British expert concluded today following a two-year survey.

Dr. W. G. Booth, medical officer of health in the London suburb of Earling, said shoes misshape children's feet and cause widespread suffering in adult life. He said half of Britain's men and three-quarters of its women have painful or deformed feet.

Cash Rolling In for Free Food Stall

Donations have begun to swell the cash box of Victoria's Free Food Stall.

In response to an appeal made by members of the stall committee for funds to help them fill Christmas hampers, donations totaling $50 were made at the Public Market last Saturday.

One anonymous donor left $25 for the purchase of turkeys. Saturday's stall was an outstanding success, according to the committee's publicity convener, Joan Bartle.

More than 10 sacks of potatoes, 18 dozen eggs, stacks of fruit and vegetables and a quantity of venison was distributed.

Next stall, the committee's Christmas edition, will be held at the market Dec. 18.

People wishing to donate either cash or food may contact Mrs. E. E. Harper at 9-4256.

Goebbels' Vast Berlin Property Will Go to State

BERLIN (Reuters)—A West Berlin denazification court ruled today that Joseph Goebbels, Hitler's propaganda minister, was a leading Nazi, which means his property in West Berlin will be confiscated.

The property includes a palatial villa with large park on Schwannwerder Island here. There was no defendant in court for Goebbels, although the court publicly summoned his heirs and relatives. One response was a letter from his sister, who asked for a postponement because she knew of "considerable mitigating material." This was overruled.

Goebbels followed Hitler to death during the debacle in Berlin. He had his six children killed by poisonous injections, made his wife bite an ampule of cyanide, then shot himself.

Wills, like fashions, have a way of getting out of date much sooner than you might expect. A year or two can make surprising changes in the requirements of your estate, for time can play tricks with your best intentions.

How long is it since you have had a look at your will?

During the past year more Canadians have sought our advice in the planning of their estates than in any previous year in the history of our company. This is due largely to the reputation our trust officers have established as able and sympathetic advisors, and to the growing need for intelligent estate planning.

Could This Be Victoria's Heliport Site?

Attention to this section of Victoria's waterfront as a possible site for a heliport has been focused by an extensive Capital Region planning report prepared by engineer James W. Wilson. Report holds great future for helicopter here and without pin-pointing any particular area, Mr. Wilson said a site at least five acres in area would be needed. "A location in an industrial district on the edge of the downtown area might be best, and the harbor area, which offers approaches over water, should be given special scrutiny." Area above shows vacant area on west side of Inner Harbor, beyond Johnson Street Bridge. Area is zoned for industry; is away from residences, and little more than half a mile from City Hall.

Malik Nominated Vishinsky Successor

NEW YORK (AP)—The body of the old Communist Andrei Vishinsky, encased in a coffin fit for a millionaire, goes back to Moscow tonight. Meantime Jacob Malik will be crossing the Atlantic in the opposite direction to take up temporarily the duties of representing the Soviet Union at the United Nations.

After Vishinsky died Monday a Russian delegation spokesman announced that the body would lie in state today so the public could view it at the delegation's Park Avenue headquarters. But today police announced the public had been barred, and only members of other United Nations delegations, government officials and such would be permitted to enter the building.

The Soviet embassy in London announced that Jacob Malik, Russian ambassador to Britain, will take over temporarily as head of the UN delegation. Malik, who has previously served at the international organization headquarters, leaves London by plane tonight.

Speculation as to Vishinsky's permanent successor centred on Gromyko, Malik, Georgi Zarubin, ambassador to the United States, and Arkady Sobolev, No. 2 man in the Russian delegation.

By DAVE STOCK

A renewed cry for amalgamation has come in the wake of J. W. Wilson's report on planning orderly development of the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

Chamber of Commerce spokesmen today took the lead in calling for another attempt to bring the four municipalities under one administration.

Mr. Wilson's report, a 60-page document titled "The Capital Region Takes Stock," was made public Monday.

Stuart Keate, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said Mr. Wilson's findings "show clearly that within 25 years the population of the area can be expected to double. The need for amalgamation will become increasingly evident."

RAISE SIGNS

"We must raise our sights," Mr. Keate said. "We must decide whether we want to be one big city or a congeries of local governments."

Three prominent members of the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs group gave a decided "no" to the question: "Is it possible that the area as a whole can be adequately and properly planned, and the plans put into effect, without amalgamation?"

"It is impossible," declared Forrest L. Shaw, chief advocate of amalgamation and a long-time student of the complex matters involved.

"Creation of the Capital Region Planning Board does not take away the autonomy of the municipalities," Mr. Shaw said. "It can merely give advice."

M. Aubrey Kent, former city alderman, said he, too, doubted that any over-all plan could be implemented without amalgamation.

"The fact that Mr. Wilson could discuss so many matters that concern all of us is ample proof that amalgamation is needed," Mr. Kent argued.

Donald Smith, former alderman and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs group, said the need for amalgamation "was more obvious now, after reading the planner's report."

NOT RAISED

Eric Charman, chairman of a Junior Chamber of Commerce committee investigating the amalgamation issue, agreed there should be a survey by a professionally competent authority, but felt it should go further than the civic affairs committee of the senior chamber has suggested.

Mr. Wilson, in his report, touched upon the administrative aspect of the capital region but did not raise the question of amalgamation. Some Chamber of Commerce men felt he skirted this deliberately, realizing the issue was a controversial one, and not wishing to antagonize anyone.

Mr. Wilson gave this comment: "It is not apparent that there are any inter-municipal problems — with the exception of the development of metropolitan parks — which are not being adequately dealt with now by some inter-municipal body or agreement. In fact, the number of such arrangements which appear to be working satisfactorily is quite remarkable."

"However, such problems are likely to increase in number and complexity as the urban area grows."

When a third fireman cut the halyard holding Jekubs, the steeplejack started to fall. His body twisted as it reached the end of the slack on the safety rope.

The combination of his weight and the twist pulled the belt hook out and Jekubs kept on falling, plunging down to the ground.

Peter Jekubs, 50, hung head downward and helpless for more than an hour after he had slipped from the tower and a rope, snarled around one leg, held him fast.

The crowd which gathered to watch the attempts of firemen to rescue him moaned and screamed when the steeplejack fell to earth. One woman fainted.

Jekubs died of injuries that included a fractured skull, breaks of both arms, several ribs, bones in the lower body and a deep gash in his head.

A safety belt was buckled around Jekubs' waist by two firemen and a rope fastened from a block-and-tackle to a hook on the belt.

'NO HANKY-PANK, MEN' WOMEN OF MARS WARN

PARIS (Reuters)—A current flying saucer craze has reached a new peak today with publication of a new monthly magazine called "The Voice of the Martians."

The review, which costs "on earth 30 francs, on Mars 0.319 bos," writes of the earth as "martians" see it from their "flying saucers" which are swarming over France these days.

It published a resolution by a Martian women's league calling on the government of Mars to forbid earth expeditions to bring back alive to Mars "any female creature." The league said it did not want Martians frequenting the earth "for low debauchery under pretext of scientific investigations."

Woods License 'Rat Race' Hit

American Application for Rights Brings Blast From Gordon Gibson

B.C.'s forest management policies came under increased opposition today with the announcement an Oregon logging firm has applied for a management license in the Anderson River area, near Boston Bar.

Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson, long-time B.C. logger, and a prominent opponent of the management system, said the government could soon "expect applications from Florida."

"They will come from all over as soon as word gets around we give away our natural resources," said Gibson. He said the Social Credit forest management policies have become "a rat race."

The Oregon firm has been identified as the Hampton interests. The firm plans construction of a $500,000 sawmill and planer mill near Boston Bar.

Pacific Pine of New Westminster also is reported to have applied for a management license in the same area, and also plans construction of a mill.

Officials of the forestry department are withholding all information from reporters. No information is available on the acreage involved, whether the license application is a conflict, or the amount of timber involved.

Deputy Forests Minister C. D. Orchard said he had "no information to give you."

'NO INFORMATION' Asked whether he felt the people of B.C. were entitled to know what was being done to their forests, Mr. Orchard replied: "Ask the minister what he is doing with them. I have no information."

Mr. Sommers would not see reporters.

Mr. Gibson said smaller B.C. logging companies would "revolt" if the government keeps giving licenses to U.S. firms.

"Under the present policy it is handing out favors to the few, while depriving the many of the means of making a living," he said.

PRESS DEMAND Meanwhile, the B.C. Truck Loggers Association has stepped up demands for an investigation into issuing of forest management licenses.

"There has been far too much backroom discussion with the public left wondering just what is happening to the rightful heritage of the people," the association said.

PREMIER SPEAKS GRAND FORKS, B.C. (CP)—Loopholes in the forest management licence plan which allow large operators to bid up timber sales too high for small operators to compete will be reviewed at the next session of the legislature, Premier Bennett said here Monday night.

The premier made the statement in an interview before making a public address before 500 persons here.

Russ Drop Objections, Vote Made Unanimous

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The UN political committee today unanimously approved President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

This was the second unanimous decision by the UN during the current session of the 60-nation General Assembly. The UN previously had agreed without a dissenting voice on a plan of work for the disarmament commission.

The vote came after Russia tried unsuccessfully to write into the plan a provision making the proposed international atomic agency subject to the Big Power veto.

Only the five Soviet bloc nations supported the Russian move and 12 countries, mostly Asian and Arab, abstained. All delegations, however, supported the plan in its entirety after the amendments were defeated.

TO SET UP AGENCY Main points of the plan as approved:

1. Gives UN approval to the establishment of an international agency to further the peaceful uses of atomic energy. This was first proposed by President Eisenhower last Dec. 8.

2. Calls upon the secretary-general to arrange for an international scientific conference on the peaceful uses of atomic energy before next August.

3. Leaves for further negotiation the relationship between the proposed agency and the UN.

HIS PLAN APPROVED

Eisenhower Places Dampers On Big 4 Talks at Present

WASHINGTON (UP)—President Eisenhower said today that he did not intend to agree to hold four power talks with the Soviet Union until the West German freedom and rearmament agreements have been put into effect.

The president, in response to a question, said he could not look into the future and foresee when conditions would make such talks possible.

He said he could not conceive that a meeting of heads of state would be worthwhile to begin with. He said it would be necessary to have talks on the diplomatic level first, and that he did not know what might follow.

The president announced that Secretary of State John Foster Dulles will make an important foreign policy address Monday night in Chicago. He said Dulles would give quite an explanation of where this government stands on four-power talks and over-all foreign policy.

There must be a proper time for thorough preparation for an East-West conference, the president said. There is no virtue in going into any quick conference for the purpose of promoting propaganda.

The president nevertheless repeated his long-held position that whenever this government has any reason to believe Russia really wants to talk about peace, it will talk too.

GRANT FORKS, B.C. (CP)—The government had realized a surplus of $2,600,000 from the operations of the B.C. Hospital Insurance Service in the last fiscal year, Premier W. A. C. Bennett said here Monday night.

Mr. Bennett said the PGE railway will have a surplus of "hundreds of thousands of dollars" this fiscal year. Contracts for the northern extension into the Peace River district will be awarded in one or two weeks.

A $2,500,000 deposit by Fro-bisher Ltd. for industrial development in the northern area of the province now is in the hands of the government, the premier said.

By 1962, the province would have no debt at all.

Could This Be City's Heliport Site?

Attention to this section of Victoria's waterfront as a possible site for a heliport has been focussed by an extensive Capital Region planning report prepared by engineer James W. Wilson. Report holds great future for heliport here and without pin-pointing any particular area, Mr. Wilson said a site at least five acres in area would be needed. "A location in an industrial district on the edge of the downtown area might be best, and the harbor area, which offers approaches over water, should be given a special scrutiny." Area above shows vacant area on west side of Inner Harbor, beyond Johnson Street Bridge. Area is zoned for industry; is away from residences, and little more than half a mile from City Hall.

Renewed Amalgamation Demands
Follow Region Plan Report

By DAVE STOCK

A renewed cry for amalgamation has come in the wake of J. W. Wilson's report on planning orderly development of the southern tip of Vancouver Island.

Chamber of Commerce spokesmen today took the lead in calling for another attempt to bring the four municipalities under one administration.

Mr. Wilson's report, a 60-page document titled "The Capital Region Takes Stock," was made public Monday.

Stuart Keate, president of the Chamber of Commerce, said Mr. Wilson's findings "show clearly that within 25 years the population of the area can be expected to double. The need for amalgamation will become increasingly evident."

Chamber of Commerce spokesmen today took the lead in calling for another attempt to bring the four municipalities under one administration.

Mr. Wilson's report, a 60-page document titled "The Capital Region Takes Stock," was made public Monday.

Stuart Keate, president of sible that the area as a whole can be adequately and properly planned, and the plans put into effect, without amalgamation?" "It is impossible," declared Forrest L. Shaw, chief advocate of amalgamation and a long-time student of the complex matters involved.

"Creation of the Capital Region Planning Board does not take away the autonomy of the municipalities," Mr. Shaw said. "It can merely give advice."

M. Aubrey Kent, former city alderman, said he, too, doubted that any over-all plan could be implemented without amalgamation.

"The fact that Mr. Wilson could discuss so many matters that concern all of us is ample proof that amalgamation is needed," Mr. Kent argued.

Donald Smith, former alderman and chairman of the Chamber of Commerce civic affairs group, said the need for amalgamation "was more obvious now, after reading the planner's report."

NOT RAISED

Eric Charman, chairman of a Junior Chamber of Commerce committee investigating the amalgamation issue, agreed there should be a survey by a professionally competent authority, but felt it should go further than the civic affairs committee of the senior chamber has suggested.

Mr. Wilson, in his report, touched upon the administrative aspect of the capital region but did not raise the question of amalgamation. Some Chamber of Commerce men felt he skirted this deliberately, realizing the issue was a controversial one, and not wishing to antagonize anyone.

UN Gives
Green Light
To Ike SchemeRussia Drops Objections
After Two Amendments Lose

UNITED NATIONS, N.Y. (AP)—The UN political committee today unanimously approved President Eisenhower's atoms-for-peace plan.

This was the second unanimous decision by the UN during the current session of the 60-nation General Assembly. The UN previously had agreed without a dissenting voice on a plan of work for the disarmament commission.

The vote came after Russia tried unsuccessfully to write into the plan a provision making the proposed international atomic agency subject to the Big Power veto.

Only the five Soviet bloc nations supported the Russian move and 12 countries, mostly Asian and Arab, abstained. All delegations, however, supported the plan in its entirety after the amendments were defeated.

TO SET UP AGENCY

Main points of the plan as approved:

1. Gives UN approval to the establishment of an international agency to further the peaceful uses of atomic energy. This was first proposed by President Eisenhower last Dec. 8.

2. Calls upon the secretary-general to arrange for an international scientific conference on the peaceful uses of atomic energy before next August.

3. Leaves for further negotiation the relationship between the proposed agency and the UN.

Jail Escapee
Gives Slip
To Police

VANCOUVER, B.C. (BUP)—Escaped convict Robert Bates appeared today to have eluded a Vancouver police cordon after threatening to travel to Winnipeg to kill his wife.

Bates, alias Robert Baharry and Norman Stanger, fled from a work-gang outside the walls of the British Columbia penitentiary near New Westminster Saturday. The 26-year-old escapee was serving a three-year term for breaking and entering.

Bates was believed to have been cornered Monday by a police cordon around his suspected hiding-place in the downtown district of Vancouver.

Police said today, however, that he appeared to have slipped from the net.

Bates forced a man at knife-point to drive him here on Sunday, and told him that he planned to go to Winnipeg to kill his wife. The motorist, provincial registrar of voters Ken Morton, told police that Bates was infuriated with his wife for "putting their five-year-old son, Garry, into a foster home in Winnipeg."

Forest License
'Rat Race' ScoredAmerican Application for Rights
Brings Blast From Gordon Gibson

B.C.'s forest management policies came under increased opposition today with the announcement an Oregon logging firm has applied for a management license in the Anderson River area, near Boston Bar.

Liberal MLA Gordon Gibson, long-time B.C. logger, and a prominent opponent of the management system, said the government could soon "expect applications from Florida."

"They will come from all over as soon as word gets around we give away our natural resources," said Gibson.

WOULD BLEACH HAIR, RIDE CAMEL

Canadian Girl Offers
To Wed Sheik Gaafar

HAMILTON (CP)—An 18-year-old Hamilton brunette today cabled a proposal of marriage to sheik Izzat Gaafar.

Jackie Wright said she knows the sheik wants to marry a blonde but she is willing to bleach her hair if he insists.

"I'll even ride a three-humped camel if that's what he wants," she said.

Sheik Gaafar told Cairo reporters last week he is lone-some and wants to marry a girl who will wear a veil and live with him in his air-conditioned villa in Kuwait on the Persian Gulf.

Jackie's mother, who says she wouldn't mind being mother-in-law to a sheik, saw the story in the paper.

"I've never seen him but anyone who advertises for someone to go off into the desert with him sounds like the type of man for me," said Jackie.

Jackie, who is proud of her 36-24-36 measurements, said she does not know if Sheik Gaafar will accept her but she is hoping. She is a telephone operator.

She says age does not matter since the sheik, twice her age, feels only 23.

"I like boys but I've never got serious about one," she said.
